Vancouver Police Hunt Daylight Robber Laundry Payroll Is Taken By Bandit In Terminal City

Accountant Surprised by Thief in Street and Thrown to Sidewalk; Robber Seizes Parcel Containing $2,014 and Escapes; Police Quickly on Scene, But No Trace of Criminal Found.

Canadian Press
Vancouver, June 17.—Attacked by a lone bandit in the 1100 block of Richards Street, William B. Morton, accountant, was thrown to the sidewalk and robbed of the $2,014 payroll of the Star Steam Laundry, Richards Street, shortly before 10 o'clock this forenoon. The bandit escaped in spite of a police search which was started less than five minutes after the robbery.

Morton, following his usual custom, went to a Granville Street bank branch to obtain the wages for the laundry employees. The money was placed in payroll envelopes and the envelopes were stacked in a cardboard box. This was wrapped in brown paper, giving it the appearance of an ordinary parcel.

FLEES WITH CASH
Carrying the parcel under his left arm, Morton was within a block of the laundry office when the bandit seized him. After a brief struggle the accountant was thrown to the street and the robber grabbed the parcel and fled.

Dazed by the force with which he had been hurled to the sidewalk, Morton was unable to pursue the bandit for several moments. He saw the man cross Richards Street and run between two houses to the lane.

Two young women saw the struggle between the accountant and the thief, but thinking it was just a street brawl, hurried from the scene.

Realizing pursuit of the thief was useless, the accountant hurried to the laundry office and sent in a telephone call to police headquarters. Inspector J. J. Thorne and a squad of detectives in automobiles responded and immediately searched the district, but without result.

The thief is described as aged twenty-six, of slim build and dark complexion, and five feet six inches tall. He was well dressed in a dark blue suit with pin stripe and was wearing a light cap.

No record of the denominations of the money in the payroll is obtainable, according to the police.

REPORT DENIED

London, June 17.—The Exchange Telegraph, which reported in a Bombay dispatch this morning that negotiations for a settlement were going on between Mahatma Gandhi and Sir Prashad, said this afternoon that the reported meeting had been authoritatively denied.

London, June 17.—The London Stock exchange reacted sharply to-day to the slump in Wall Street yesterday, practically all sections dropping in sympathy. There were no buyers in evidence and there was little selling.

SURVEY OF FORT STREET IS COMPLETE

By-law for Widening of "The Dardanelles" Is Now Being Prepared by City Solicitor

Work Will Start Early Next Year If Ratepayers Sanction Scheme

Survey of "The Dardanelles" has been completed and the by-law is in process of being prepared by City Solicitor B. S. Friggle. It was learned at the City Hall to-day. It is likely that the question will come before the City Council next Monday. The by-law to authorize the city to raise the necessary money for the completion of the Fort Street widening scheme will be placed before the ratepayers next December, simultaneously with the civic elections.

TO EXPROPRIATE
In the meantime the expropriation by-law will be prepared and after being approved by the City Council steps will be taken to expropriate the property on Fort Street, between Harrison Street and Oak Bay Junction.

Owners of property on the thoroughfare affected by the expropriation powers assumed by the city will be given sufficient time to institute legal proceedings if it is considered in their interests to take action against the city.

WIDTH OF SEVENTY FEET
The street will be widened to a full width of seventy-six feet, inclusive of the sidewalks, which means that the thoroughfare will, when completed, be as wide as Fort Street, at Linden Avenue. Property on both sides of the street car tracks will be taken to avoid tearing up the B.C.E.R. rails.

After the passing of the charge the widening operations will be started by the early part of next year.

Hoover Gives Business Stability as His Reason for Approving Measure

Washington, June 17.—President Hoover to-day signed the tariff bill.

The President had announced in advance of receipt of the bill he would approve it in the interest of business stability.

He believes the revised flexible provision giving the tariff commission power to recommend rates for approval on rejection by the President will afford an opportunity to correct any unfair rates, go a long way toward taking the tariff out of politics and obviate the necessity for another Congressional revision "for many years to come."

LENORTH COURSE
The bill was signed one year, five months and ten days from the day the House gave and means committee began public hearings on the subject in the latter days of the Coolidge administration.

It provides 1,122 changes in present duties, including 887 increases and 235 reductions. More than 250 of the advances are on agricultural products, including sugar, dairy products, grains, cattle, meat, fruits, vegetables, nuts and seeds.

Industrial products given rate cuts include textiles, in the raw and semi-processed state, clothing of all kinds, manganese and zinc ores and some of other commodities. Plate glass, aluminum and automobiles are the major products given lower rates.

Among forty-eight articles taken from the free list are soft wood lumber, cement, brick, long staple cotton, hides, leathers and shoes.

FLIERS ATTEMPT FLORIDA-CALIFORNIA ROUND TRIP

Jacksonville Beach, Fla., June 17.—William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee took off at 5:04 a.m. eastern standard time (3:04 a.m. Victoria time) to-day for a round trip flight to San Diego, California. The fliers, whose plane carried 450 gallons of gasoline, hoped to reach San Diego, a distance of 2,112 miles, and return to Jacksonville Beach in twenty-four to thirty hours. Overcast weather prevailed at the takeoff and moderate head winds and showers were predicted along the route.

NANAIMO GIVES STRONG SUPPORT TO O'HALLORAN

Workingmen and Businessmen Firmly Behind Liberal Candidate

Active Campaign and Close Study of Constituency Creates Impression

Backed by enthusiastic workers and with new supporters daily volunteering their assistance, C. H. O'Halloran's campaign in the Nanaimo riding for a seat in the Federal House is gaining force with a momentum that has brought predictions of success from all parts of the district.

In the city of Nanaimo, where it is confidently expected the Liberal candidate will receive a majority that will prove sufficient to decide the contest, Mr. O'Halloran's cause will be supported by many workingmen and prominent business men. The intensive campaign he has continued over a period of four years, and the close attention he has given to the needs of the district, has created a favorable impression and the Liberal nominee is looked upon as a man well fitted to represent the district in the House of Commons. THREE ARABS ARE EXECUTED IN PALESTINE

Put to Death for Murders During Anti-Jewish Riots Last August

Jerusalem, June 17.—Three Arabs, convicted of murder committed during the Anti-Jewish rioting of last August, to-day paid the supreme penalty for their participation in the disturbances of that time.

The three were executed before noon at the Acre Jail. All endeavors of the Arab executive, supported by the heads of the Christian churches, to obtain a reprieve for them failed.

ARABS ON STRIKE
A general strike was called and was observed by Arabs throughout Palestine in protest against the carrying out of the sentences. Shops, practically without exception, were closed.

EXCITEMENT IS GREAT
Intense excitement prevailed at Acre, where Arabs demanded the bodies of the executed men. Wishing to bury them themselves instead of having them interred in the prison cemetery. Meanwhile airplanes demonstrated over the town. From 10 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. musicians called Arabs to prayer throughout the country in memorial services for the dead.

A crowd of Arabs gathered outside the government offices to demonstrate against the executions. Police dispersed them with difficulty. One policeman was wounded.

TO RENEW OFFENSIVE
Shanghai, June 17.—Nationalist forces, which have been practically completed, and that hostilities were to be expected momentarily.

Nationalist forces were said to be planning a drive as far as Lanfeng, fifty miles east of Kaifeng. General Feng Yu-hsiang, one of the leaders of the Northern rebels, was said to be making his headquarters at Kaifeng.

PLANES CAPTURED
While the Nationalists asserted their position in Northern Province was satisfactory, advice from Northern sources said the rebel cavalry, consisting of Mongolian ponies and expert horsemen, was being captured.

SEGRAVE FUNERAL IS HELD IN LONDON

London, June 17.—The body of Sir Henry Segrave, who died of injuries received when his aeroplane crashed in England 11, was cremated at Lake Windermere, to-day was cremated at Golders Green. The ceremony was attended by Lady Segrave, the parents of Sir Henry and Lord Wakefield.

At the same hour a large crowd assembled in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, where a memorial service was held for the late sportsman.

SASKATCHEWAN FARMERS TO VOTE ON COMPULSORY POOL

Canadian Press
Regina, June 16.—The Saskatchewan Pool is closer to-day to the compulsory pool plan of marketing products than at any time in its brief history. Not later than August 1, pool members are to ballot on the 100 per cent pool scheme, under which all Saskatchewan grain would be marketed through the pool. If a majority favors the system, the pool will ask the government for the necessary legislation.

Decision to ballot among the Saskatchewan pool's contract-signers—some 85,000 farmers—was made at the semi-annual meeting of pool delegates.

McRae Immigration Plan Seen Employment Menace

Brantford, Ont., June 17.—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Premier of Canada, at a great meeting here last night, delivered the keynote speech of the Federal election campaign.

What was described as the greatest national radio hook-up ever attempted in Canada, carried the words of the Prime Minister across the Dominion from Coast to Coast through twenty-three radio stations.

He quoted Mr. Bennett's Winnipeg statement of last week in which he announced the policy of "blasting" the way for Canada's trade in foreign and Empire markets. The Premier asked his listeners whether they desired to send to the Imperial Conference men who proposed to "blast their way to trade" or men who would go with a spirit of friendship and goodwill.

McRAE BACK OF IMMIGRATION PLAN
The Premier touched on unemployment in its relation to immigration.

"The immigration policy of the Conservative Party, as outlined by General McRae," Mr. King said, "is that of a huge colonization and land settlement scheme, involving an expenditure of some $300,000,000 and the bringing in of 300,000 fresh immigrants."

"Perhaps Mr. Bennett will tell the West how this policy, which he supported, would have helped to lessen the unemployment of which he has had so much to say in the present campaign."

CRISIS LEADS PREMIER OF EGYPT TO QUIT

Wafdist Cabinet Resigns on Constitution Bill Dispute With King

Cairo, Egypt, June 17.—Mustapha Pasha, Premier of Egypt, to-day tendered his own and his cabinet's resignation to King Fuad. His ministry was formed June 9, 1930, after a Wafdist victory in the general election a few days before.

The resignation was understood to be due to conflict between the King and the cabinet with regard to a proposed bill to safeguard the constitution, providing severe penalties for violations. The Premier previously had stated the cabinet was unable to carry out its duties and consequently its dignity could not permit it to remain in office.

Thirty-one Minutes Seattle to Victoria

Pilot Ansel Eckmann Sets New Record for Air Trip From Seattle

Seaplane of Alaska-Washington Airways Makes Average Speed of 125.8 M.P.H.

Seattle to Victoria in thirty-one minutes! This new speed record between the two cities was established yesterday afternoon by Ansel Eckmann, chief pilot of the Alaska-Washington Airways, in the Lockheed-Vega seaplane operated daily in this service. Eckmann sliced exactly fifteen minutes off the old record for commercial planes. His average speed for the trip was 125.8 miles per hour. The plane is powered with a 435-horsepower Pratt-Whitney engine.

Leaving the Sound City float at 4:15 o'clock, Eckmann dropped his ship into the local harbor at 4:44 o'clock. The veteran pilot had the advantage of a fairly strong wind which aided him considerably.

The cabin seaplane carried three passengers on the record trip. Those aboard besides the pilot were: E. A. McArthur, Fred Carter and Ross Cunningham, all of Seattle.

JUROR ESCAPED JAIL SENTENCE

Joseph Longpre yesterday Caused New Trial of Wallis and Tompkins

Assize Juror Medically Certified Incapable of Service Through Drinking

Joseph Longpre, assize juror, yesterday afternoon caused Mr. Justice Gregory to order a new trial of Stanley E. Wallis and William N. Tompkins. Longpre was medically certified to be under the influence of liquor after he had persistently interrupted the proceedings of the trial of the charge against Wallis and Tompkins of obtaining $1,888.40 by false pretences from Rithet Consolidated Limited, by means of a document purporting to be a conditional sales agreement for a Hummobile sedan valued at $2,905.

Reginald Gerin, accountant, was telling the court that the books of Consolidated Motors Limited gave no evidence that Tompkins had been a salesman, nor that he had ever been paid commissions. The ledger having been brought into court and explained as covering the period from September, 1928, to March, 1930, the juror Longpre intervened with reiterated demands that the latest book be presented, and efforts to satisfy him proved useless. The juror having been told from the bench that he was not entitled to conduct the trial, retorted that he had to sit and listen to a lot of useless material. His Lordship thereupon adjourned court and sent for a medical practitioner.

SERIOUS OFFENCE

Dr. J. H. Moore attended and after retiring with Longpre reported, "I find the juror has had something to drink and recommend that he does not function to-day."

"The juror then asked if he 'could be excused forever,'" asked His Lordship.

"What I ought to do is send you to jail, you come here in an incompetent condition. Give me some reason why I should not send you to jail!" asked His Lordship.

"That's up to you," said Longpre. "I should, but I have not the heart to do so. But you must be punished. I discharge you, and fine you the sum of money you have earned by attendance for seven days, that is $28," announced His Lordship.

Modern Girl Discovers Recipe For Happiness In the Kitchen

Back-to-the-stove Movement Claims Alert Miss 1930

To-day's girls... enjoy being domestic

By JULIA BLANSHARD

Girls are going back into the kitchen! Household equipment, heads of big department stores, evening cooking class teachers, apartment house managers and corner grocers all attest this new feminine movement.

It is not, however, into old-fashioned kitchens that girls now go. Nor is it in the quaint old manner of fourteen hours out of every twenty-four. Nor is it the timid "home girl" who heads it.

Successful business women and working girls make up the vanguard. They are getting the kitchenette habit and learning anew that there is a lot of enjoyment in a hand-cooked, well-balanced meal and, what is more, it has charm for the men of their acquaintance.

"We have ten times the requests for cooking equipment with one-room apartments to-day that we had three years ago," the manager of an apartment house told me. "Most girls have their breakfasts in and several times a week cook company dinners for their men friends. Over week-ends they cook all their own meals and seem to get a lot of enjoyment out of being real domestic."

The buyer for a big department store cites many new household gadgets as a direct response to requests from women keeping house in little apartments in a big way. A new ice-box that fits under the sink, sets of dishes that come two of a kind instead of three, two-plate electric stoves with grill underneath, the combination electric cabinet and dinette which seats two and has plugs for a single griddle dish, for percolator and toaster, and all manner of fancy molds made in small sizes.

THE COOK-BOOK MARKET

"Cook-books with recipes for two are those that have sold best this winter," the head of the cooking department of one of the bookstores said. "Most of them sell noon hours, so I conclude it was working girls who bought them. They are rather fussy about balanced diets, too, which shows they are beginning to take a real interest in cooking."

"Girls must find it cheaper to eat in," a grocer told me. "They certainly don't stint on green vegetables and fresh fruit, however. And you should see the way the majority of them know the difference between different kinds of lettuce, artichokes, and the way they go in for new vegetables. Most of them have planned a list during the day and buy on the way home. I am selling twice as many bachelor girls provisions to-day as I did last year."

"I have decided that the greatest need of a working girl is a kitchen," said the manager of a new apartment which has full kitchens, Bohemian kitchens, modernistic kitchens, and other kinds of kitchens. "Many women are not able to express themselves on canvas or manuscript paper. But most of them can plan a fancy luncheon or a substantial dinner and get a lot of creative satisfaction out of it. The business woman, working with men, lunching in a crowded restaurant, rushing to and fro, changes her whole personality for a more feminine one when she goes to her own little apartment, dons a smart little calico dress or kitchenette pyjamas and becomes a hostess in a pretty setting of her own making. She finds a becoming change and relaxation in her very own quarters and takes great pride in having her friends in."

Many a marriage, I have noticed, seemed to have begun in a kitchen. Young men, living in furnished rooms, appreciate the girl who can serve them a tantalizing home meal. I should say that this back to the kitchen movement might almost be called a romantic one!

GREATER TRADE WITH CANADA IS JAPAN IDEAL

Hon. Iyemasa Tokugawa, Minister at Ottawa, Speaks in Vancouver

Vancouver, June 17.—Emigration is not the solution of Japan's pressing problem of population so much as redistribution of its people within the boundaries of its empire, Hon. Iyemasa Tokugawa, Japanese Minister to Canada, told members of the Vancouver Canadian Club at a luncheon yesterday.

"The fundamental principle," he declared, "which underlies Japan's attitude in all her external dealings, is to safeguard her interests, economic and otherwise, by peaceful means at all times and to co-operate with other nations on the basis of mutual helpfulness and international solidarity."

Of the place of Canada in the esteem of Japan, the minister left no doubt. The Japanese, he explained, realized that they were no longer self-sustaining and that they were bound to get much of their supply of food and raw materials from other countries.

"In this respect the Japanese people look with hope to the enormous natural resources of Canada, as indicated already in the development of Canada's wheat trade with Japan in recent years," he said. "At the same time the Japanese look to the extensive market and growing prosperity of Canada for the possible expansion of Japanese trade."

FORT AND DOUGLAS

200 GUARDS WILL PATROL CHINA COAST

Anti-pirate Association Is Formed to Protect Coastal Shipping From Attacks

Shanghai, June 17.—Ravages of pirates on coastal and trans-oceanic shipping plying along the Chinese coast resulted yesterday in announcement of the organization of a squadron of specially trained anti-pirate guards. The guards, numbering 200, organization of whom has just been completed, will assume their duties July 1.

Establishment of the guard was the outgrowth of the section of the British Government in forbidding British troops stationed at Hongkong to serve aboard commercial vessels needing protection against pirates. Soldiers during the previous year had been sent as guards.

With troops no longer available shippers decided to form their own guards, the Hongkong police acting as directors merely because of their executive organization, and their knowledge of effective anti-pirate methods.

AROUND HONGKONG

The most seriously infested pirate area is considered to be the coast 200 miles both north and south of Hongkong. Included in this area is the famous pirate lair, Bias Bay, lying between Swatow and Hongkong, which is considered the fountain head of all piracy on the Asiatic coast.

Victims have consisted principally of the smaller coastal steamers. Occasionally, however, the pirates have displayed astounding daring by attacking the larger transoceanic vessels and if successful, taking the ship in Bias Bay or the vicinity. There the cargo would be looted, the passengers robbed, and often wealthy Chinese would be held for ransom. Usually the victimized ship would be released.

Detachments of the guard, organized by owners of four British coastwise and transoceanic lines, will be assigned to vessels carrying passengers between Shanghai and Singapore, to protect them from the ever present danger of attacks from Chinese pirates. For centuries these freebooters have victimized commercial vessels on the eastern shore of Asia.

The patrol, organization of which is a new departure in the long existing battle against China's daring buccannery, will be known as "the Hongkong anti-pirate guards."

UNDER POLICE CONTROL

Deriving their name from the fact that they are under jurisdiction of the Hongkong police department, although expenses of their maintenance are divided among shippers enjoying their protection, organization of the unit has just been completed. The Inspector-general of the Hongkong police has been at Shanghai the last month enlisting men from the ranks. Only men already trained in the use of firearms have been accepted. Nationalities of the personnel include British, Russian, Indian and Chinese. Various nationalities are needed to meet the varied demands of steamers the guards are to protect.

Most of the men have been sent to Hongkong, where they will be given special anti-pirate training preparatory to boarding their ships July 1.

MAN IS KILLED WHEN AUTO GOES OFF HIGH BRIDGE

Twenty Violent Deaths in Ontario in Three Days

Toronto, June 17.—A continuation of accidents resulted in more fatalities being added to the twenty who met violent deaths throughout Ontario over the week-end.

Charles Reeves, twenty-five, leading Canadian athlete, was killed at Niagara Falls when his motor car hurtled off the bridge over the Niagara River and plunged more than 100 feet to the rock-lined shore below.

Two men were killed in runaway accidents. Thomas Wallace, Raleigh Township farmer, suffered fatal injuries when hurled from his wagon when the team had bolted. Hugh McArthur, Peterboro, met death in a similar manner.

Mike Chepkar, fifty-two, was killed by a train at Welland, while James H. Minix, fifty, was killed when a plank being cut at a sawmill snapped off and struck him.

Joseph Hoey, forty, was killed when a tree fell on him near Owen Sound. Three drownings occurred. The body of an unidentified man was found in the river at Sault Ste. Marie. Gordon Switzer, seventeen, was drowned in the Y.M.C.A. swimming pool at Orillia, while an unidentified body was found in the Detroit River near Windsor.

EARL OF SEFTON DIES IN LONDON

BENNETT REPEATS PARTY PLEDGES AT VICTORIA MEETING

Mr. Bennett drew a picture of Canada with trade languishing, the balance of trade against it, revenue dropping by $5,000,000 or $6,000,000, unemployment more serious than it had been before in recent years, and asked if some blame was not attached to a government which brought about such conditions. A government could not be held responsible for all conditions, but the responsibilities for some they must shoulder.

Canada, a new country, with great natural resources, with all the foundations of natural prosperity, should not be suffering from hard times if the powers of the government were being utilized as they should be. He failed to see the strength of the argument that Canada should suffer because another country was facing adverse conditions.

Canada by its natural increase and by immigration should have a population of 11,000,000 souls, but he was told the latest figures would show that it had less than 10,000,000. Over a million and a quarter of Canada's best citizens had crossed to the United States in the last eight years, he said, charging the Government with lack of a policy which would hold them in Canada.

USEFUL EMPLOYMENT

What Canada needed more than anything else was work. Useful employment for its own people under their own flag, home-giving jobs for its own people. The Conservatives had always been to encourage the production in Canada of all Canadians needed as far as this could be carried out, and this had always been the policy of the Liberal Government. During the eight years the Liberal Government had been in power the Conservatives had persistently advocated the necessity of consideration for Canada's iron and steel industry, for agriculture, for the dairy, cattle, sheep and livestock industry, yet only now with an election facing them had the Government made any move in this direction at all. He rejoiced at this conversion to protection for the Canadian citizen. "While the lamp holds out to burn the vilest sinners may return, but," asked the speaker, "is there such a thing as consistency in public life?"

COUNTERVAILING DUTIES

Mr. Bennett ridiculed the countervailing duties in the Dunning budget as applying to sixteen items of no outstanding importance from a list of 1,200 items. "They are 'countervailing' duties," said the speaker, "the United States will do the counting, we will do the walling."

"Remember," said the speaker, "the penitent thief went to heaven but he died first. He died the same day." For nine years the Liberal Government had ignored the things it now advocated and now asked the people to save them because they had got religion. Were the people of Canada to be deceived by this compensation adjustments as well as the benefit of the above policies to every part of Canada.

BRITISH PREFERENCE
The last shot in the Liberals' locker as revealed by the budget was British preference, he continued. In this connection, he claimed emphatically, the Conservative policy has always been a policy of preference for the British Empire and particularly for that part of the Empire which was Canada.

On the Australian treaty, he said, no government should have considered a treaty with Australia which did not include British Columbia lumber. The preference given to New Zealand on butter had cut down the number of milch cows in the Dominion by 143,000. It was a bargain that had destroyed Canadian industry. The consequences of such a bargain it now advocated and now asked the people to save them because they had got religion. Were the people of Canada to be deceived by this compensation adjustments as well as the benefit of the above policies to every part of Canada.

Mr. Bennett emphatically declared that he was not against foreign trade. "The basis of foreign trade is first of all to supply your own necessities," he said. Canada must supply its own market to the maximum and send its other products to other nations of the world to compete with them on fair terms. What effect, he asked, would it have on the employment situation if Canada produced $300,000,000 worth of the $800,000,000 worth of goods it purchased? By lessening overhead and increasing production, Canada could take the place it was entitled to in the world. It had the resources and workers of the finest type in the world. What Canadian was there who was not a dolt system or any system of charity. Not dols, but work; not charity, but

Mr. Plunkett expressed loyalty to and confidence in the Conservative leader, and stated that although Mr. Bennett had to hurry through the province, there was no doubt of his interest in western Canada. Mr. Plunkett emphasized his allegiance to the Conservative Party and offered his opinion that the Liberal Party was not working for the good of Canada. Only one government and one leader was worthy of the gratitude of the people, and that was the government and leader who legislated for the benefit of its own people, and not for that of a foreign nation. He asked the audience if they thought they had had good leadership during the last eight years, and charged the Liberal Party with overcharging policies and principles they had always stood for.

He dealt with the record of the Federal Government in advancing an argument that it had shelled duties, which Mr. Plunkett claimed were Federal on to Provincial Governments, mentioning health units, technical education, national highway. "What a splendid thing it would have been if the Dominion Government had decided to spend $10,000,000 on a national highway across Canada," the speaker remarked.

He highly commended the Soldiers' Allowance Act passed at the last session, but said it was forced on the government and was ten years late. He also asked why there should not be a Federal old age pension. Unemployment, he asserted, was a serious problem in Canada, despite what Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King said to the contrary. Mr. King gave a hint of unemployment insurance, and this Mr. Plunkett claimed was for the purpose of vote catching.

Turning to the budget, the speaker said there were three free traders in the Cabinet. Did they believe these men were heart and soul in the policies enunciated in that budget. It represented a combination of protection, free trade and countervailing duties. Countervailing duties meant the U.S. would play the pipes and Canada would dance to the tune. Touching on the British preference, he scored the Liberal Government which, he said, had permitted the United States to raid Canadian markets for eight years.

MR. DICKIE
Mr. Dickie paid tribute to the services of Mr. Plunkett as member for Victoria. "You would probably have read much more of his speeches," he said, but he advised him it would be better for him to get his bearings before he delivered any extempore speeches.

Turning to national policies, he said the Conservatives were standing behind those policies they had always stood for, and he warned against placing faith in Liberal promises enunciated on the eve of an election. Mr. Dickie prophesied the return of three Conservatives for Vancouver Island.

Alluding to the absence of Premier Tolmie, who is on the Alaska Highway automobile tour, the chairman said they would all regret that the Premier was not present, but it was a source of satisfaction to know that "Tolmie was on the job looking after the business of this province."

NEW DUTIES AGAINST U.S. GOODS SOON

Canada's Countervailing Levies Will Start When Hoover Signs Tariff Bill

Canadian Press

Ottawa, June 17.—When the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill becomes law in the United States it will not only raise the rates Canadian exporters will have to meet in that country, but it will entail increases against several United States products entering Canada.

Countervailing tariff provisions contained in the Dunning Budget provide in connection with certain items that where the duty any country imposes against Canada is higher than the Canadian Tariff, equivalent rates of duty shall be imposed on such goods entering Canada from that country.

Among items increased by the Hawley-Smoot Bill and for which, accordingly, the Canadian rates will be raised against United States, are: Oats, butter, eggs and cattle. In the following tabulation are shown the general tariff rate, the present countervailing rate and the new countervailing rate which will apply when the Hawley-Smoot Bill becomes effective:

Oats, (per bushel), general 10 cents, present 15 cents, Hawley-Smoot Bill, 16 cents.
Butter, (per pound), general 7 cents, present 12 cents, Hawley-Smoot Bill 14 cents.
Eggs, (per dozen), 3 cents, present, 8 cents, Hawley-Smoot Bill 10 cents.
Cattle, general 25 per cent, present 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 to 3 cents per pound, Hawley-Smoot Bill, 2 cents per pound.

opportunity was Canada's need. There were great national undertakings that must be embarked. National policies touching the lives of every Canadian to be started upon without delay were essential. Canada could not spend another eight years like the last. It could not lose another million and a quarter people. The injury would be too serious, the drain too great.

Mr. Bennett said he went to Winnipeg to enunciate his policy because he did not want to do so in the East or West. The Conservatives could not spend another eight years like the last. It could not lose another million and a quarter people. The injury would be too serious, the drain too great.

On the Soldiers' Allowance Act Mr. Bennett said it was a joint act of Canadians of all creeds and kind, and the Liberal Party was not entitled to claim any credit on this count.

Concluding Mr. Bennett emphasized the argument running through his address that the Conservative Party's first objective was Canada and the good of Canada. He pledged the Conservative Party to a policy of protection for the Canadian citizen in the development of our national resources, our agricultural and industrial life, and our consumers from exploitation; to foster and develop agriculture and the livestock and dairy industries, now so sadly neglected; to the stabilization of economic conditions, and to continuity of trade and freedom from the manipulation of home and foreign tariffs; to the development of interprovincial trade; and of a Canadian fuel policy, and development of a foreign market; to foster and support a plan for great Empire trade and based on mutual advantage; to a national old age pensions scheme; to such compensation adjustments as will insure the benefit of the above policies to every part of Canada.

POPULATION AND POLITICS

AUDIENCE THROUGHOUT THE country must be getting used to Mr. Bennett's complaint about what he calls Canada's loss of population since the King government took office in 1921. During the course of his speech at the Royal Victoria Theatre last night he said the Dominion should have a population of more than 11,000,000 instead of less than 10,000,000.

This familiar argument represents an attempt to convince the people of Canada that the policies of the King government have been responsible for Canadian citizens going to the United States to earn their livelihood. But it has become very worn. It collapses completely in view of the facts.

It is true that a few years ago, when the reaction from the effects of the war was being felt in Canada—especially during the last two years of Conservative rule—and our neighbor was experiencing an almost unprecedented boom—the exchange of population between the two countries revealed an unfavorable balance against us. It was this situation with which Mr. King and his colleagues were called upon to deal, and it demanded more progressive policies. New policies were created and put into operation, and latest returns, from Washington and Ottawa, show that not only has the former adverse balance been wiped out altogether, but that it has been replaced by a balance in this country's favor.

One aspect of this subject which Mr. Bennett did not discuss in his speech last night was the situation as it affected the exchange of population during the period between 1912 and 1921. He did not tell his audience what happened to the 1,380,000 who left the country in those years of Conservative rule. Nor is there any record of either Mr. Bennett or any member of the party which he now leads suggesting any plan to put an end to the very serious exodus of that time.

The majority of the Canadian people, of course, realize there is always bound to be an exchange of population between adjoining countries, particularly where the same language is spoken and the customs of the people are very much alike. The village artisan, for instance, who is offered a better job in Detroit than in Toronto, or who believes that in half a dozen United States cities he can find a better job than he is likely to find in one Canadian city, feels that he ought to go there to see what he can do. It is an old story; the young, when they move, find a strange attraction in the distant places. A good deal of the movement back and forth across the border naturally has its origin in considerations far removed from those to which politicians so frequently refer.

In this regard it is interesting to note some comments from Sir Robert Borden when he addressed the annual meeting of the Crown Life Insurance Company, in his capacity as its president, a little more than twelve months ago. On that occasion the former Conservative Premier expressed himself as follows:

The tendency which creates such migration is characteristic of almost every country. Our people do not migrate to other countries because they are dissatisfied with our institutions or our system of government. They report to large centres of population and to great industrial centres (whether at home or abroad) for the purpose of wider and fuller opportunities of employment. Within the United States migration to urban areas is equally conspicuous and arises from like causes.

In his recent speech at London, incidentally, Mr. Bennett admitted that "the cycle of prosperity had run its course in the United States, and those who were not citizens of that country were finding themselves out of work." As The London Advertiser reminds us, Mr. Bennett's logic limps badly when he implies that Canadians were driven to the States because this country refused to imitate the high tariff system of that country. The leader of the opposition says Canadians who are coming home cannot find anything to do in this country. But although the United States tariff has been for years much higher than Canada's, and soon will be higher still, prosperity has run its course there, and because there is no work for them, Canadians are homeward bound. Well may the London newspaper ask: "What is Mr. Bennett trying to prove? One assertion simply cancels another."

WORTH THE MONEY

CANADA, ACCORDING TO FIGURES published in MacLean's Magazine, has invested no less than $100,000,000 in golf. Roughly, for every man, woman and child in our population, $10 has been spent to lay out golf courses, erect club houses and provide all that paraphernalia of a pastime which, for popularity, has no parallel in all history. And that, of course, is only the beginning. No one can possibly estimate how much Canadians are spending on golf in those inevitable routine expenses, which every good golfer is able, by long practice, to persuade himself do not exist.

These figures, known and presumed, are rather staggering. Doubtless no nation of similar size ever before spent so much on a game, and doubtless also, no nation of similar size could so well afford it. Humourists, who would find the going hard if they did not have golf at which to poke fun, will undoubtedly find much inspiration in such statistics. A few non-golfers may argue that all this money, poured into constructive business enterprise, would yield great annual dividends. But the nation, as a whole, knows better. It knows that golf arrived on this continent in the nick of time, at a point in our development when something of the sort was required to save us from disaster. If golf had not appeared to offer relaxation and out-of-doors exercise to untold thousands of office-bound men and women, it is hard to see how the vigor and health of the nation could have been preserved.

A century ago, before there were automobiles, elevators and telephones, men could get along without golf, for they received enough exercise in their daily routine. Doubtless they could get along now if they were willing to undergo the misery of physical jerks every morning, but most of them require some other inducement to keep themselves fit. Golf, by a strange magic, which no one but a golfer understands, has supplied this inspiration. It has proved an antidote for the poisons of too rapid living. It has had an incalculable influence on the bodily health of this country. It has soothed and comforted countless busy minds, frayed out by the speed of this century, for golfers assure us that a long, low drive, or an approach shot laid dead to the pin, provides an ecstasy and an enduring philosophic calm which the non-golfing mind can never know. Life, being what it is, and not slowing up perceptibly, Canada's $100,000,000 investment in golf seems to be a sound one.

ONE TOO MANY

IT IS BAD ENOUGH FOR THE GANGSTERS of Chicago to shoot one another and defy the law generally; but when they shot and killed Alfred Lingle, an experienced member of The Chicago Tribune's editorial staff, they committed a tactical blunder which very probably will sound the death knell of their reign of terror. The first reaction of this murder was the offering of a large reward by the newspapers of the city for information that would lead to the apprehension of the culprit.

Apparently the peace pact which the Chicago gangs recently negotiated is having little effect upon underworld psychology, for, apart from this slaughtering of a newspaper reporter, machine guns are being brought into action again and the casualty list already begins to look very much as it did a few months ago. Dead bodies are being found beside lonely roads once more, and firing squads appear to be on the prowl in many quarters.

Every gangland killing, of course, simply entrenches the gangs more firmly in power. Every time one group of cut-throats turns its machine guns upon a rival group, it merely convinces every member of the underworld that he and his kind are beyond the reach of organized society as represented by the police and the courts. Every underworld murder establishes the chiefs of gangland, more securely than before, as a law unto themselves. For these reasons it is impossible for society to derive any satisfaction out of this string of murders.

These killings are nothing but the gangsters' way of making sure that they can continue to prey on society unmolested. There is a new recruit to take the place of every hoodlum that stops a bullet. When the people of the second city of the United States tell themselves, therefore, that they need not be alarmed because one more beer-runner has been shot to death they are just deluding themselves—in a very dangerous way. The Lingle case, however, has stirred public opinion more than it seems to have been stirred before.

A THIN ARGUMENT

WHEN IT IS ALL BOILED DOWN, IT is clear that about the worst thing Mr. Bennett can say about the Canadian-Australian treaty is that, despite the very substantial advantage this country enjoys under its operation, it should not have been made without a provision for a preference on British Columbia's lumber.

Surely Mr. Bennett spoke with his tongue in his cheek when he advanced this palpably thin argument to bolster up his opposition to the treaty. In one breath he appears to be attempting to create the impression that the arrangement is bad business because it does not give British Columbia enough advantage, while in the next breath he almost asks us to believe that this very effective method of extending Canada's trade with another part of the empire is no more than a pernicious bargain.

The people of British Columbia, of course, insist that this arrangement, which has increased employment in this province—to say nothing of the large amount of new capital which has been attracted by it—shall not be disturbed, but that its scope shall be extended as soon as it is practical to do so. This is the intention of the King government.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MODEL AIRMEN AND THE FUTURE
The St. John Telegraph-Journal

The indications are that the air routes will develop even more quickly than did the expansion during the past century in railway transportation lines, and that in this development Canada will occupy an important place.

This conclusion is evident to any one who looks for a moment at Canada's geographical position and realizes that from almost any part of the United States to Europe, the main traveled air lines will cross Canadian territory. Similarly, from the capitals of Europe to the trading centres of the Far East, the shortest air route is northward across Canada, and it is not impossible to express air lines from London to Tokyo may traverse the Arctic regions. This is the lure of this great enterprise and has the advantage of being within the realm of the possible and the practical. Of course there are problems, innumerable problems to be solved before this development will stand on a firm commercial basis; but they are problems that belong to the youth of this scientific age, and problems that he is specially fitted to grapple with. The Model Aircraft League of Canada is but one of the many manifestations of the trend of the time, and in its effort to direct the boys and girls of Canada to a clearer appreciation of this steady progress of aviation, it is making a valuable contribution to the part that Canada undoubtedly will play in the whole question of aviation on this continent.

PROPORTIONAL REPRESENTATION
The Ottawa Daily

The Conservatives have nothing to fear from a general application of a system of proportional representation. But it is evident that if the system is only brought into effect in the towns, the Liberals will gain seats in the centres like Toronto, Vancouver, Halifax, where at present they have no representatives. On the other hand, the Conservatives would gain in Montreal, Winnipeg and even in Quebec.

KOMO OR KJR?

To the Editor:—A petition is circulating in Victoria supporting allotment of a clear radio wave channel to Station KOMO, Seattle.

The only clear wave channel, I believe, is the one held by KJR, one of our best stations.

If this petition seeks to advantage KOMO at the expense of KJR it would be most unfortunate for the radio listeners of Victoria.

Can assurance be given that such a result will not follow success of the petition?

RADIO AND ELECTRIC EQUIPMENT

To the Editor:—The residents of Burnside district have repeatedly made complaints to the office of Department of Marine and Fisheries regarding interference from B.C. Electric Company's overhead equipment. Up to date nothing has been done.

If a person has money invested in a radio and pays the usual license for same, I think he has a perfect right to expect a little consideration.

What would our multitude of motorists say, if after buying their car and paying their license, they weren't allowed to use the roads?

KUMTUKS CLUB

PLANS SUMMER

PICNIC OUTINGS

The Kumtuks Club at its business meeting held in the clubroom, 1115 Langley Street yesterday evening, with Miss Kate McLaren in the chair, received an excellent report of the recent conference at Qualicum from Miss Fitzgerald of Vancouver. The forthcoming convention of the Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs at Winnipeg from July 2 till 5 was discussed and the delegate instructed on the various matters to be presented at the gathering. The report of the convention will be given at a special meeting on July 16.

Plans were made for a series of picnics during the summer months, the club having received several delightful invitations. The first will be held on July 16 at the home of Rev. Montague Bruce, Saanich; Mrs. C. W. Bradshaw has invited the club for July 30 at her summer home at Cordova Bay; at Mrs. F. A. Williams, August 13; at Mrs. E. C. Maynard on August 27.

Mrs. Maynard reported for the House committee. Mrs. W. Monteith will address the club at its next luncheon meeting on June 30 at Spencer's. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered to

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO TO-DAY

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES, JUNE 17, 1905

To those who may be accounted the best judges of the matter nothing seems more certain than that Victoria and Vancouver Island are on the verge of an era of unprecedented and magnificent development and prosperity. Never have the advantages of island and city been more talked of anywhere; never have so many eager inquiries from all quarters poured in upon the officials, whose duties it is to receive and answer these queries, and never have Victoria and Vancouver Island bulked so largely in the plans of the mightiest corporations in Canada, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway.

Weather forecast—Victoria and vicinity—light winds, fine and warm to-day and Sunday.

Mr. Max Leiser and Mrs. Leiser have gone to Dawson, N.W.T., for a short holiday. They sailed on the steamer Princess Victoria last evening.

The appointment of Peter S. Lampman to the County Court bench, of Victoria, is a source of deep gratification to his host of friends in the profession of law and out of it. He is one of the most popular members of the local bar, and possesses in a marked degree the essential qualifications for the position.

The High School entrance examination will be held in the high school next week, beginning Monday morning at 9 o'clock, under the supervision of the city superintendent.

The baseball game played yesterday afternoon between Victoria and Vancouver, at the Terminal City, resulted in another victory for the former team to the score of 4 runs to 1.

No meeting of the Northwest Baseball League was held last evening. Bellingham's representative failed to turn up at the meeting and it was decided to postpone it until to-morrow.

The Liberal-Conservative Association held its annual meeting last evening in the Eagle's Hall. William Mable presided, and in his introductory speech took great credit to the officers for having last year saved the association out of debt.

GAS PRICES UNDER REVIEW

Autoists Discuss Variation in Coast Cities

The difference in gasoline prices in Coast cities formed the chief topic of discussion at yesterday's monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Victoria Branch of the Automobile Association of Canada, held in the Chamber of Commerce with Rev. Montague Bruce in the chair.

Despite the recent drastic cut in Seattle which has brought the retail price of gasoline to 15 cents a gallon, Victorians still have to pay 33 cents for their gasoline, while the price is even higher in Up-Island points, such as Nanaimo, it was pointed out. The meeting was told that a committee had been appointed to Vancouver to investigate these questions.

A letter was read from the Victoria West Brotherhood advocating the use of the Craigflower rather than the Gorge Road for Island Highway use. The letter pointed out that a change was imperative, that the present road was very slippery after rains, and that the Craigflower Bridge was unsafe for heavy traffic. Among other advantages the proposed route was a mile shorter. A letter is to be sent to the Mayor, and it is possible that the association will take the matter up with the Minister of Public Works.

Considerable discussion was given to the question of compulsory liability insurance of automobiles. The A.A.A. are against it, but favor the Safety Responsibility Bill, which punishes owners for failure to pay damages in case of an accident, it was reported. This system, operating in a number of the districts of the United States, is working well in Ontario, the meeting was told.

A resolution was passed advocating the improvement of the road from

At the conclusion of the meeting the Rev. Montague Bruce read out the membership list. The Victoria membership was 667, which showed a gain of ninety-one new members, and a net gain since January 1, of thirty-one.

NEW REVENUE SEIZURE SEEN AT TIENTSIN

Leaders in Control of Peking Take Over Customs Service There

Tientsin, China, June 16 (Delayed by Censor)—The customs houses here were seized this morning on behalf of Yen Hui-shan, governor of Shanai and one of the leaders in the newly proclaimed "National" government with its capital at Peking.

The buildings this afternoon were isolated, with the telephone lines cut. When the staff, most of whom were foreigners, arrived at their offices, they found official posters at the entrance notifying them the customs facilities had been taken over by Yen. The notices added that adequate revenues would be posted at the usual banks to cover obligations, foreign loans and secured customs revenues. They were signed by the Tientsin garrison commander, the mayor and the Chinese customs superintendent.

Colonel Hayley Bell, commissioner of customs, arrived shortly and was interviewed by the Chinese superintendent of customs, who notified him of the action on behalf of Yen and introduced Bertram Lenox Simpson, known also as Putnam Weale, author and journalist, who he said was to succeed him.

Ends Piles Quick

No Salves or Cutting

Piles are caused by congestion of blood in the lower bowel. Only an internal medicine can remove the cause. That's why salves and cutting fail. HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonard, removes this congestion and strengthens the affected parts. HEM-ROID is now sold by druggists everywhere, and has such a wonderful record of success even in chronic and stubborn cases that McFarlane and Vancouver Drug Stores invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantee money back if it does not end all Pile misery. SCHOONER BLUENOSE IS PULLED OFF NEWFOUNDLAND ROCKS

Canadian Press
Halifax, N.S., June 17.—The Lunenburg schooner Bluenose, champion racer of the North Atlantic fishing fleet, which was ashore at Point Roche, Placentia Bay, Newfoundland, was hauled off to-day by the Canadian Government steamer Arras. According to a message recently, C. H. Harvey, agent for Nova Scotia of the Marine Department, the Bluenose was not damaged to any extent. The Arras towed the schooner to Argentia, near Point Roche.

DOUKHOBORS ON THE MARCH NEAR NELSON

Authorities Say Freedom Sons Must Not Pass Through City

Nelson, B.C., June 17.—At this morning's rate of progress of the party of fifty to sixty Doukhobors marching from their homes at Porto Rico to Brilliant, the main settlement of the Doukhobors, it was not expected the crusaders would reach the city of Nelson until late this afternoon. The marchers camped last night on the Nelson-Spokane Highway and took the road again this morning, headed for Nelson, carrying banners appealing to Christians to join them in seeking "freedom."

BARRED FROM CITY

The attitude of the Nelson civil authorities is that the marchers must not pass through Nelson, and it is possible the Doukhobors, who belong to the Sons of Freedom sect, will skirt the city. The general opinion, however, is that on being halted they will go into camp and await reinforcements for a few days.

To-day the ranks of the marchers were augmented by small parties, and there was a further movement reported from Porto Rico, where approximately 400 of their number spent the past nine months.

WHEAT SURPLUS MUST BE SOLD, SAYS DUNNING

Canadian Press
Regina, June 17.—Hon. Charles A. Dunning, Federal Minister of Finance, addressing an audience of more than 3,000 here yesterday evening, said he was quite willing to be faced with the charge that had been leveled against him in the east—that he had framed the budget with the idea of selling prairie wheat. He said the serious economic condition, now world-wide, was the result of a world-wide surplus of basic commodities rather than a fiscal policy.

The great wrong which he said the Finance Minister had gathered on the occasion of his nomination as Liberal candidate for the commons in Regina, which constituency he represented in the last House, was not only the unemployment situation world-wide, said Mr. Dunning, but it was also baffling the best minds in the world. While it was true industries had been built up, they would fade overnight if it were found impossible to sell Canadian wheat. The growing crop and its movement to the seaboard meant jobs for thousands. Wheat was vital to Canada and the only great market was in Great Britain. His budget, he continued, had been framed with the sale of the wheat crop in mind. By making it possible to buy more from Great Britain it would be made possible for Great Britain to buy more from Canada.

BRANTFORD GIVES PREMIER GREAT WELCOME

Bagpipes, Canadian Legion Band and Flag-draped Automobile Procession Greet Him

Peterboro, Ont., June 17.—Premier Mackenzie King will speak at Peterboro to-night, after which he will return to Ottawa for Wednesday, before leaving for Quebec City and the Maritimes.

By Ray Brown, Canadian Press Staff Correspondent

Brantford, June 17.—A parade of five draped automobiles, a cheering crowd of thousands, which filled the gaily decorated armories, a crowded platform on which stood a formidable array of microphones flanked by members of the Federal government and the House of Commons, and prominent Liberals of western Ontario—these formed the setting for Premier King's opening campaign speech here last night.

Brantford gave the Prime Minister a warm welcome. When his train pulled into the station he encountered a sea of faces.

ACCORDED CIVIL WELCOME

Flags, cheers, the music of the Canadian Legion band, and the stirring notes of the bagpipes greeted him. He was conducted to the leading car of a long procession of flag-draped automobiles, and driven slowly through streets lined with people to the armory. There a gathering estimated at 3,000 people, some seated, some standing, awaited him. His entry was greeted with cheers. A civic welcome was conveyed to him by Mayor Ross L. Beckwith. Presiding over the meeting was A. T. Whitaker, president of the Brantford Liberal Association. Seated on the platform were Hon. James Macdonald, Minister of Trade and Commerce, Hon. W. R. Fisher, Minister of National Revenue, and Hon. J. C. Elliott, Minister of Public Works.

OTHER POLITICAL SPEAKERS

The chairman first called on the candidates in Brant County and in Brantford to speak briefly. "I stand for the Dunning budget because it decreases trade with the United States and increases it with the British Empire," asserted Ross Macdonald, Liberal candidate in Brantford. "There is no doubt the Liberal Party will be returned to power," he declared, and the declaration inspired resounding cheers.

John Harold, Liberal candidate in the neighboring constituency of Brantford, dealt with the parliamentary record of the Liberal Party and asked for the support of the electorate.

The Senate of Canada was generously represented on the platform by Senators E. S. Little, W. H. Murray, J. H. Spence and J. P. Rankin. W. G. Raymond, ex-member for Brantford, also was present.

PARTIES UNITE TO INCREASE EMPLOYMENT

Canadian Press
London, June 17.—According to The London Daily Herald, organ of the Labor Party, Rt. Hon. David Lloyd George has offered Premier MacDonald to secure a sound and dependable majority for emergency measures to wage war on unemployment.

Talking to The Herald's parliamentary correspondent on the eve of re-assembly of parliament to-day after the Whitsuntide recess, the veteran Liberal leader showed anxiety about unemployment and said it was going from bad to worse.

"It must be treated," he declared, "as a national emergency—as much an emergency as the situations which arose during the Great War."

"What is needed is an emergency session working under emergency procedure to pass emergency measures to deal with an unquestionable emergency in trade and unemployment."

If all of the Liberals support it the MacDonald Government should be able to put through any legislation it proposes. The Liberals hold the balance of power in the Commons.

SASKATOON TO HEAR BENNETT

Winnipeg, June 17.—Three prairie points will hear Hon. R. B. Bennett on his return from the coast. The Conservative leader, who will finish his Far West election campaign swing to-night at Vancouver, will speak in Saskatoon June 19, Moose Jaw June 20 and Brandon June 21.

AT DUNCAN

At Duncan last night Mr. O'Halloran was given a rousing reception from a large audience. His presentation of Liberal policies, examination of the achievements of the Liberal Government, and the review of the Dunning Budget was punctuated with frequent outbursts of applause. C. E. Whitney-Griffiths and Norman Whittaker also gave addresses.

Continuing his active campaign, which calls for meetings nearly every night of the week, Mr. O'Halloran will speak to-night at Chemainus. Wednesday he will speak at St. Aidan's Hall, Nanaimo, and the Rex Theatre at Esquimalt. He will also address two meetings Thursday, one at Metchemin and the other at Langford. Friday he will speak at Soanemo.

WEDDING HELD AT CATHEDRAL

Miss Mabel Warder Becomes Bride of Winston S. Robinson

At Christ Church Cathedral yesterday evening at 8 o'clock, Rev. E. W. P. Carter, officiating, in marriage Mabel Frances, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Warder, and Winston Shakespeare Robinson, youngest son of the late Mr. T. P. Robinson and Mrs. Robinson, Mears Street.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a wedding gown of ivory white georgette fashioned in slim lines, with long sleeves and a tiny cape, and an embroidered tulle veil held in place by a circlet of orange blossoms, several sprays of which had been worn by her grandmother, Mrs. G. Miles. She carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and white carnations. Her only ornament was a pearl sunburst brooch, the gift of the groom's mother, which had been worn at her wedding twenty-five years ago.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Helen Dash, in a pretty frock of flowered georgette and picture hat of natural mohair turned off the face with a spray of French flowers. She carried a bouquet of pink carnations and blue delphiniums tied with blue tulle. Little Eleanor Dash was a dainty flower girl in blue crepe de Chine carrying a basket of red roses and ferns.

The bridesmaids, Misses Emily and Ethel Warder, sisters of the bride, were bridesmaids, daintily gowned in flowered chiffon, with picture hats to match, and carrying bouquets of Japanese iris and pink carnations.

The groom was supported by Mr. Joe Dennison and the ushers were Messrs. Albert Warder, Leslie Dash, Fred Goodman and Arthur Harris.

A reception followed the service at the home of the bride's parents, 1902 Duchesne Street, where the bride and groom, assisted by Mrs. Warder in a French model gown of grey georgette beaded with crystals and mohair hat to match, and Mrs. Robinson, wearing a frock of beige Canton crepe and a mauve hat, received about two hundred guests.

The supper table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake and decorated with pink tulle and vases of pink roses and white carnations. Among the many gifts was a rayon bedspread and bolster to match from the staff of David Spencer's Limited hardware department, of which the bride had been a member, and a handsome china clock from the staff of Bennis and Taylor, of which the groom is a member.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson left at midnight for Vancouver, the bride traveling in a frock of lawn crepe de Chine and a beige straw hat and an overcoat of leaf brown cloth trimmed with ermine, and she carried a calf-skin handbag, the gift of the groom. On their return they will make their home at 1746 Second Street.

It is said that it required 2,000 men three years to carry a single stone from Elephantine to Suez for use in one of Egypt's pyramids.

BENEFIT FOR LOCAL ARTIST BIG SUCCESS

Shrine Hall Filled for Concert to Aid Miss Bick Yesterday Evening

Mrs. D'oyly Rochfort Among Brilliant Array of Talented Artists

Philanthropy appeared in delightful guise yesterday evening to the large audience which filled the Shrine auditorium when a number of leading Victoria artists gave generously of their talent for the benefit of a fellow-artist, Miss Irene Bick, violinist, who has been seriously ill.

The sentiment of the audience was aptly summed up in the little address of thanks given by W. B. Lanigan during the intermission in which, on behalf of the committee, he recorded appreciation of the spirit of kindness evinced by the many friends of the beneficiary as represented in the generosity of the artists who presented so fine a programme, those who were responsible for all the multifarious details of arrangement, and the public who rallied so splendidly to their support.

RADIO AND "TELEVISION"

Attune to the spirit of the occasion, the artists all gave of their best and the audience responded with enthusiasm, every number on the excellent and varied programme meeting with clamorous applause. Each was announced in novel fashion by Bob Webb, after the manner of a radio announcer. Seated before a microphone, he announced each number with appropriate witticisms and a reference to television, upon which the darkness stage was flooded with light and the artists appeared. A tiny curtain of gauze hung over the entire stage heightening the effect of the "television." Under the direction of Mrs. L. A. Genge and Edward G. Clark, beautiful settings had been arranged and lent added attraction to each number, while Mrs. F. G. Aldous and her committee were responsible for the charming floral decorations, large poppies flaunting their scarlet heads in a splash of color on either side of the stage.

MRS. ROCHFORD

Mrs. D'oyly Rochfort, who came over from Vancouver to assist in the performance, renewed the triumph she experienced here during the years of the war, when as Phyllis Davis she appeared with outstanding success in a number of the revues arranged for patriotic causes. Her first group included, "I Don't Know," "The Amorous Goldfish," "From The Gaiety," and "Where Is My May?" and in her second group, dressed as a small boy, sang with vivacious charm, "In the Dark," assisted by a chorus including Bob Webb, Edward G. Clark, Herbert Kent and Frank Allwood.

Comtesse Jean de Suzannet's beautifully-trained voice was heard to advantage in "Mia Belle Amoureuse," "Aimable Flore," and "Per la Gloria." Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, in a charming white senorita costume, complete with mantilla, gave a spirited rendering of two Mexican songs, "Estrellita," and "Cielito Lindo." Mrs. Styles Selhi daintily sang "Tip Toe, Through the Tulips," accompanied by a prettily-costumed chorus of members of the Commodore Broughton Chapter I. O. D. E. Attired in Indian costume and with a wigwag for setting, Mrs. D. B. McConnan sang the brilliant, "The Indian Numbers," "By the Waters of Minnetonka," and "Indian Love Call."

INSTRUMENTAL NUMBERS

Dr. T. H. Johns, who was in fine voice, sang "I Will Not Grieve" and "My Love Abode," and Frank Tupper, fresh from his triumphs at the recent musical festival, gave an excellent rendering of "Dream in the Twilight," and "O Mistress Mine."

Instrumental numbers were contributed by Miss Dorothy Morton, pianist, who played "Dance Negro," and "Romance," and Miss Margaret Devin, whose piano solo, "Impromptu" and "Waltz," Miss Adele Bucklin's violin solos included "The Old Refrain," and "Allegro."

Miss Naomi Taylor danced a dainty "pas seul," Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Corby cleverly presented the amusing playlet, "Jealousy," and Miss Ora Pearson contributed several recitations, including "The Emir's Game of Chess."

Admirable support was given at the piano by Mrs. Chas. Conyers, and the Misses Margaret Dunlop, Elizabeth and Beatrice Hicks, while Mrs. Attfield and some of her pupils provided the mandolin accompaniment for Mrs. Wilson's Mexican songs.

Educational Film Shows—Last evening in the Board Room, Pemberton Building, the members of the New Educational Fellowship enjoyed a private showing of a film on "Forest Adventures in the Great Northwest," made and exhibited by the British Pictures Producing Company under the management of E. Flintoff. There was a capacity meeting and the little stage was prettily arranged with flowers, banking the miniature screen, upon which the films were projected by Mr. Young, Mr. Flintoff and Mr. McKay, who gave an interesting explanatory lecture on the films.

The film was the first in the series of films on the industries of British Columbia, six of which it is hoped, will be ready by September. With Rev. W. G. Wilson as chairman of the meeting, the Fellowship was given an opportunity for discussion at the end of the film, and Mr. Flintoff and the British Pictures Producers the appreciation of the meeting and their opinions of the excellent films shown.

Canadian Daughters League—Assembly No. 3, Canadian Daughters League, held their social meeting on Thursday evening in the Shrine Temple. The meeting will commence with a short business session. Plans will be completed for the annual picnic of the assembly, and the delegates to the Grand Council Convention held recently in Vancouver will present their report.

Mrs. M. J. Lyons Makes Presidential Address at Sudbury Gathering

Canadian Press
Sudbury, Ont., June 17.—Reviewing the league's activities during the past year, Mrs. M. J. Lyons of Ottawa, Ont., to-night delivered her presidential address at the opening session of the tenth annual convention of the Catholic Women's League of Canada, which she described as "a parliament of Catholic women of Canada." The convention, she said, would "brush out problems, plan further activities and take up matters of vital importance to future progress."

COUNTERACT PROPAGANDA

"The success of our deliberations," Mrs. Lyons said, "will be measured by the attitude and heart with which we approach the legislation that will come before us. We must contribute our best thought and ability to the development and furtherance of the ideals we stand for in service to God and country and as we go forth from this convention may we carry with us the realization that the practical work we do as the lay apostolate may reach the highest state of efficiency and meet the immediate needs of the time; that the moral and intellectual influence of the Catholic Women's League may with the help of the Holy Spirit continue to exercise its weight in counteracting the anti-Christian propaganda of the day and in the study of social problems and perplexing questions of the time help others to form opinions consistent with the teaching of the church, and thus all Catholic women will be enabled to range themselves on the side of Christian progress."

Reviewing the year's work, Mrs. Lyons said Mrs. J. C. Keenan, second vice-president, had represented the league at the convention of the National Council of Catholic Women of America, held in Washington last September, and Mrs. Keenan and Miss Florence Boland represented the league at the convention of the Catholic Youth Society in Toronto last fall. Miss Boland also represented the league at the Social Service Hygiene Conference in Toronto last May.

INTERNATIONAL DELEGATE

She announced that Mrs. John McMartin of Montreal would represent the league at the international conference to be held at Rome. On the occasion of the jubilee of Pope Pius a gift of $500 was sent to Rome through the intermediary of the honorary chaplain, Most Rev. Henry J. O'Leary. Grateful acknowledgment and the blessing of His Holiness were conveyed to the league by his eminence Cardinal Gasparri.

BURSARY GIVEN TO MISS E. BIRD

St. Joseph's Alumnae Gives $100 to Nurse Second in R.N. Exams.

Miss Esther Bird of St. Joseph's Hospital, who came second in the province in the recent R.N. examinations, was awarded the annual bursary of $100 at the annual meeting of the Alumnae Association of St. Joseph's Hospital Saturday afternoon.

After the reading of reports by the secretary and treasurer, officers were elected as follows: Honorary president, Sister Superior Mary Mildred; honorary vice-president, Sister Mary Gregory; president, Miss Ursula Whitehead; vice-president, Mrs. Stubbard; second vice-president, Mrs. Welsh; recording secretary, Miss D. Grubb; corresponding secretary, Miss A. Cruickshank; treasurer, Mrs. Lewis.

Mrs. M. Devereux and Miss Madge Ashley, respectively, won the doll and golf clubs and bag offered as prizes in a contest. A vote of thanks was tendered by Mrs. Stubbard to the retiring president, Miss Eunice Macdonald, and her executive, who had carried out their duties so splendidly.

The Sister Superior addressed the meeting, urging the need of a deeper interest in nursing problems, and expressing the hope that the association would continue to render some assistance to the profession. A tentative programme was drawn up for the coming year. At the close of the meeting the members were the guests of the Sister Superior Mary Mildred, the table decorated with the alumnae colors. Later, the members visited the new Nurses' Home and hospital.

YOUR CHILDREN

School will soon be over. Then what are the children going to do? There comes to almost every woman with a family of growing children a faint misgiving when she thinks of the summer months ahead and their complicated problems. For children at home all day are a different proposition from children away safe and sound and occupied in school.

Children at home tear things up as soon as they are put in order, they get hurt, they have quarrels, they're always thinking up something to be done—pronto—such as getting up picnic lunches in a hurry or going swimming, and in the midst of the ironing Mother has to tear up to the attic to see what the motes have left of last summer's bathing suits.

It's all very well to talk about giving them a hammer and nails and old boards and letting them build a shanty or turn the back yard into a playground with sliding boards, sand-piles and what not. This is an excellent idea and it fills the bill beautifully—as far as it goes.

But it has its limits, for just as soon as the novelty has worn off the youngsters are likely to leave the improvised playground as empty as a movie at midnight. When the thrill is worn off the chances are that their mother will be as busy as ever racking her brain for something new to keep them busy.

Now, please, don't let the children read the rest of this, for they are going to hate me for every word I write. This is the idea!

A WORKING SCHEDULE

Make a schedule of work to be done by each child every morning.

After all, if they are going to learn things outside of school, summer is the only chance they have. All learning is not in school books. And a good bit of learning is spelled w-o-r-k!

First I'd make up my mind that I was in the right and that I was not imposing on the children; then, that mental hazard past, I should set about planning a systematic campaign.

For instance, there's Betty. She is eleven or thereabouts. Betty gets a card with something like this to post in her room.

Eight o'clock—up. 8:30—breakfast. 9:00—Make own bed and dust up room and hang up clothes. Fridays, run electric sweeper; change bed. Shoes and clothes always put away. Little sweeper other days. Always dust. 10:00—Errands. 11:00—Practice. 12:00—Lunch. 1:00—Monday, Wednesday and Saturday, do lunch dishes. Afternoon free.

Elizabeth is nine. Very well. Alternate her days with Betty's on the lunch dishes, otherwise her schedule may be the same except that instead of running errands she can dust the living room or stairs. Let her take care of her own room, too.

Give seven-year-old Bobby small tasks to do—straightening up the play-room and yard, hoeing the porch and walk and putting away his own clothes. Write it out for him and explain the words.

The work will get done, the children will be occupied and the afternoons will not be a bore, as vacation afternoons sometimes are. Release from duty brings its own entertainment. Then there will be time for picnics and rides and all sorts of things. They won't realize it but they will be learning the recipe for real happiness, which begins: "A little work, a little play—a king could be content that way."

Junior Catholic League—The Junior Subdivision of the Catholic Women's League met on Thursday evening in the library of the Bishop's House for the discussion of routine business. Two new members, Mrs. Margaret McGregor and Miss Margaret McKee, were received and plans for visiting the Sunshine Camp of the Social Service on the opening day, Wednesday, arranged. The juniors are deeply interested in the camp because of the cottage they will furnish this year. Miss E. O'Neill presided at Thursday's meeting and the minutes and correspondence were read by Miss Helen Redgrave, secretary.

VANCOUVER BRIDE AND GROOM

Four brides and grooms inaugurated the June honeymoon season on Canadian Pacific liners out of Vancouver June 12 when the 22,000-ton Empress of Canada sailed for Honolulu and the Orient with 400 passengers. Among the honeymooners were Mr. and Mrs. L. S. McLennan, prominent socially in Vancouver, pictured above on the liner's decks. Mrs. McLennan is the former "Paddy" Moran. Their wedding trip takes them to Honolulu.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF THE DOMINION MEET IN EAST

Mrs. Lyons also announced a diocesan unit of the league had been organized by herself in Quebec City, her birthplace. She urged ceaseless organization until every Catholic woman in Canada shall have been enrolled in the league, and the necessity of organizing diocesan subdivisions, funds for which should be provided at this convention. Two scholarships had already been awarded under the league's national educational programme, Mrs. Lyons said.

SISTERS OF SERVICE

The Sisters of Service found themselves becoming more strongly entrenched, and together with leaguers port workers had done much to make the entry of immigrants a cheerful one, she continued. Immigration within the league had developed a fine sense of co-operation on the part of the convents of local subdivisions and assisting organization, she said.

"Local subdivisions have done much good work, especially among the lonely girls, to make their lives brighter by providing entertainment and meeting places for them," she said. Loneliness is the greatest menace the committee has to combat for the protection of girls and women confined to its care.

The work accomplished for child welfare by the league was becoming an outstanding feature in various communities, she said. To make life better and the opportunity greater for the development of the soul and body of the child, the future citizen of the country was a great incentive to anyone, she said.

Referring to girl guides, she urged the necessity of appointing area directors; asking the delegates to bear in mind the guides to-day will be the C.W.L. of to-morrow, and they should be installed with that idea as early as possible. She thought the necessity for junior organization could not be too strongly emphasized, these young girls bringing fresh enthusiasm, ideas and capacity for work into the league.

In accordance with a resolution adopted at last year's Windsor convention, Mrs. Lyons said Mrs. W. O. Story had been appointed convener of the Study Club Group under the educational committee.

During the enactment of the bill creating a divorce court in Ontario, the C.W.L. drew up a resolution opposing the bill because the league stands for the sanctity of the home and the indissolubility of marriage. The resolution, she said, was distributed to Members of Parliament, and she personally took the matter up with Premier King and the leaders of the Opposition parties, asking for their influence to keep the bill from passing, but it was finally enacted.

YOUR BABY AND MINE

by MRS. MARY ELLEN ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred will be glad to answer all questions pertaining to babies and children. A stamped and self-addressed envelope forwarded to this office will bring a personal reply.

PREPARING BABY'S VEGETABLES NEEDN'T BE A NUISANCE

Preparing vegetables of which the small child takes only a few spoonfuls is always regarded as a nuisance. Perhaps some of this annoyance is the direct result of the daily feeding of carrots and spinach, which the mother feels are the only safe vegetables for baby, and which the rest of the family can't be wheedled to eat more than once weekly.

There are so many vegetables that baby can enjoy, and it is taken for granted that the family will have one or two fresh or canned vegetables daily, that these vegetable feedings need not be so much extra labor. Small portions of the vegetables cooked for the family can be taken out and run through a sieve and seasoned for baby. Sieved vegetables and vegetable soups just for babies are now sold by leading dealers everywhere. They are carefully prepared and unseasoned, so that one has only to open a tiny glass jar or can and there you are.

KEEP ICE COLD

Even these may be too much for one feeding, so they should be divided in equal parts, the remainder kept in the glass jar right on ice and brought to a boil the next day before serving. In a very cold ice box the vegetables or soup could last for three days. Be sure your ice box is very cold. Some of them are just cool.

Mrs. R. E. G. suggests a way in which she has managed this vegetable feeding. "In order to have daily vegetable feedings for the baby," she says, "I sterilized two small glass jars. I cook two vegetables daily and put them in the sterilized jars. These I keep on ice and when needed I put the vegetables in a ramikin and heat them in the oven. This baby can have the same vegetables on Monday and Wednesday with no extra trouble."

Carrots and spinach are excellent vegetables, but even baby gets tired of them and there is no reason why he shouldn't enjoy many others. Peas, green string beans, squash, beets, asparagus, cauliflower and tomatoes are all stimulating to baby's taste and will be eaten with relish.

HOW DO YOU COOK THEM?

The way in which vegetables are cooked makes them palatable or tasteless. To cook vegetables in seas of water and then drain the water into the sink is to leave a tasteless, soggy, colorless mass of cellulose behind with all the valuable mineral salts nourishing the drain and not the baby. Steaming vegetables is the best possible method, and next best is to cook them over a low fire with the tiniest bit of water in a tightly covered vessel. Then the juices can be incorporated into the sauce and served over them.

If large chunks of vegetables are seen in baby's stool, they need more thorough cooking. To find small traces in the stool is natural. This indigestible portion is the "bulk" for which vegetables are in part valuable.

Langford

The Langford District Girl Guides, with Mrs. B. P. Reynolds (captain), attended the annual guide fete, held at Government House, on Saturday. Besides taking part in the marching, the girls ran a strawberry and cream stall, which proved very attractive. The local corps consisted of the Bluebird Patrol, with Cecily Bennett, leader; Margaret Smiley, second; Ellen Hinks, Elizabeth Welch, Alice Heron, and Adela Yates. The Nightingale Patrol, with Betty Smiley, leader; Pamela Bennett, second; Stella Hinks, Shirley Ratt, Edie Smith and Jean Clarke. The Oriole Patrol, with Eleanor Peat, leader; May Wishart, second; Greta Hendon, Lily Elliot, Ruth Anderson and Esther Hutchinson.

The tea hostesses on Saturday at the tennis club were Mrs. L. G. Wilkenson, Mrs. A. Norman Brown and Miss Thelma Brotherton. Major A. D. McLean and H. C. C. Bennett were hosts at the courts on Thursday afternoon.

The annual tournament of the Langford Tennis Club will be held between Sunday, June 22 and July 6. All names and entrance fees must be given to the honorary secretary, Mrs. A. F. Bayles, on or before Saturday, June 21.

The tournament will consist of ladies' handicap doubles, mixed handicap doubles, mixed doubles for Wender's Challenge Cup, Men's open singles for Langford Garage Cup.

Mrs. I. W. P. Jackson, who has been spending a few days the guest of Miss M. Bingham, Esquimalt Road, has returned to her home on Goldstream Road.

Miss Jay Nixon, who was visiting at Holmwood over the week-end, has returned to her home in Victoria. A christening took place on Sunday afternoon in St. Matthew's Church, when Rev. A. L. Nixon baptized the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cecil Brown of Goldstream Road, with the names Robert James. Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Waddington of Esquimalt, grandparents, were the godparents. Mrs. W. Sherriff and Miss Edith Sherriff, Mabel and Paty Brown, and Mr. and Mrs. C. Brown were among those present.

Match Play Opens To-day In P.N.W. Amateur Golf

Forest Watson Is Medalist After a Sparkling Round

Former Champion Turns in Sensational 68 to Lead Field With Total of 142 for Thirty-six Holes; Frank Dolp and Freddie Wood Finish in Tie for Second Place; Bob Morrison, Victoria City Champion, Finishes Fifth; Tie Is Seen for Qualifying Honors in P.N.W. Women's Championship.

Canadian Press

Vancouver, June 17.—With their toughest opponent—Old Man Par—out of the way, the thirty-two men and thirty-two women qualifiers in the Pacific Northwest amateur tournament settled down to-day to play each other in the first rounds of match competition.

Competing on two courses twenty miles apart yesterday, the men qualified over thirty-six holes at the Vancouver Golf Club and the women over eighteen holes at the Shaughnessy links. The women had planned to shift to Vancouver to-morrow for the remainder of their tournament but some talk was heard to-day of the feminine golfers continuing at Shaughnessy until Friday.

Bagging an amazing 68 on the morning eighteen and a 74 on the afternoon round, Forest Watson, Seattle, topped the field of 109 men starters in the qualifying play yesterday to win medal honors with a total of 142. Watson won the amateur championship in 1926 and is considered as one of the boys to beat for the title this year.

MORRISON QUALIFIES

Bob Morrison, Victoria city champion, finished fifth with 150. R. J. Darns, now the only other Victorian to reach the select group. The defending titleholder, Frank Dolp, Portland, and Freddie Wood, Vancouver, broke the tie for second honors with 144 each. Malcolm Macnaughton and George Will, both of Portland, finished third and fourth, respectively. The former with 146 and Will with 149.

TIE FOR HONORS

Mrs. K. S. Reed, Portland, and Mrs. E. McAllister, Vancouver, tied for medal honors in the women's qualifying round with 85 each and they were scheduled to meet in a special nine-hole match to-day to decide who should take the medal prize.

Mrs. Vera Hutchings, Vancouver, defending champion, took one more stroke to finish in second place with an 86.

The men's draw for to-day was as follows:

Forest Watson, Seattle, vs. Eddie Sharpe, Vancouver.

Jim Bell, Vancouver, vs. Cecil Coville, Vancouver.

Alex Duncan, Seattle, vs. Russ Case, Vancouver.

Louis Klauke, Spokane, vs. George Will, Portland.

Les Nichols, Portland, vs. Lloyd Nordstrom, Seattle.

Herb Winn, Seattle, vs. Johnny Robbins, Portland.

C. D. Gowan, Vancouver, vs. W. H. Turner, Portland.

T. A. Havemeyer, Vancouver, vs. Freddie Wood, Vancouver.

Malcolm Macnaughton, Portland, vs. A. D. Campbell, Walla, Walla.

Hugo Haakons, Seattle, vs. Eddie Hogan, Portland.

Monty Hill, Vancouver, vs. Dick Darcus, Victoria.

Bon Stein, Seattle, vs. Lee Stell, Seattle.

Bob Morrison, Victoria, vs. Tom Telfer, Vancouver.

J. Bushong, Portland, vs. Ed. Greenway, Seattle.

Al Harrington, Yakima, vs. Harry Duker, Vancouver.

WOMEN'S DRAW

The women were paired as follows:

Mrs. K. S. Reed, Portland, vs. Mrs. S. C. Sweeney, Vancouver.

Mrs. J. R. Golding, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. R. Gellety, Vancouver.

Mrs. F. Fowler, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. K. Allen, Victoria.

Mrs. E. Brodie, Portland, vs. Mrs. A. M. Parnell, Los Angeles.

Mrs. W. B. McWaters, Portland, vs. Mrs. H. Bowen, Yakima.

Mrs. W. Silcock, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. F. Jackson, Vancouver.

Mrs. A. Parkhurst, Los Angeles, vs. Mrs. M. G. T. Barnett, Missoula.

Mrs. E. McAllister, Seattle, vs. Mrs. E. McAllister, Vancouver.

Mrs. K. Farrell, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. C. E. Lindley, Seattle.

Mrs. A. C. Calanz, vs. K. Eva, Portland.

Mrs. L. Wiley, Seattle, vs. A. Robertson, Vancouver.

Mrs. W. A. Kirkham, Seattle, vs. Mrs. B. P. Sellar, Portland.

Mrs. M. McDougall, Portland, vs. Mrs. C. Swigert, Portland.

Mrs. S. Nelson, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. F. Sellar, Portland.

Mrs. E. P. Baker, Vancouver, vs. Mrs. A. S. Matthews, Vancouver.

Mrs. E. A. Wheeler, Bellingham, vs. Mrs. Vera Hutchings, Vancouver.

The men were paired in thirty-six holes and the women eighteen.

The thirty-two golfers to qualify were:

Watson, 68-74-142.

Dolp, 72-72-144.

Wood, 73-71-144.

JUST A BUSH LEAGUE TRICK

BUT IT WORKED TWO DAYS "IN A ROW IN THE MAJORS"

THE HIDDEN BALL TRICK IS AS OLD AS BASEBALL, BUT IT REMAINED FOR BABE PINELLI TO BRING IT OUT OF THE MOTHBALLS SUCCESSFULLY. WHEN THE BASE WAS PLAYING THIRD FOR DETROIT ONE DAY AGAINST WASHINGTON, SAM RICE GOT ON AND WORKED HIS WAY TO THIRD BASE. A SHORT DELAY IN THE GAME AND PINELLI GOT HOLD OF THE BALL AND CONCEALED IT IN HIS UNIFORM. RICE TOOK A LEAD AND PINELLI POUNCED ON HIM FOR A PUTOUT. NEXT DAY AGAINST PHILADELPHIA, PINELLI TOOK PLEASURE IN RAZZING THE ATHLETICS FOR USING SUCH A BUSH LEAGUE TRICK. IT AGAIN BEFORE THE DAY WAS DONE. IN THE THIRD INNING THE RABE PULLED IT AGAIN, STUFFY MANNING BEING THE VICTIM.

LIVELY BALLSCHOOL HOLDS TO REMAIN IN SPORTS MEET MAJOR LEAGUE

National League Magnates Decide That Fans Favor Clouting Carnage

Attendances Show Increase This Season; Discuss Opening Dates

New York, June 17.—The crash of base hits rattling off the fences and home runs thudding over the barriers failed to disturb the magnates of the National League as they met with President John A. Heydler in special session yesterday afternoon on the basis of financial returns round the circuit, the club presidents decided to leave things strictly alone and let the clouting carnage go on.

Figures presented at the meeting, but not made public, disclosed that baseball's faithful apparently have no quarrel with the situation that has developed since the ball in use took on jack rabbit tendencies. Attendance at the ball parks has "increased substantially" during the first third of the season as compared with figures for the corresponding period last year. Heydler said. Clubs are doing especially well in Boston, Cincinnati and Brooklyn. A decisive note was added to the present make-up of the ball by Walter F. "Dutch" Carter, new member of the Brooklyn board of directors. Carter conducted a one-man referendum among the Brooklyn citizens and found the most satisfying game to be a 9-8 score, combining fair pitching with not too much hitting.

DISCUSS OPENING DATES

Discussion of dates for opening the season ended with reference to the annual problem to presidents of the American and National Leagues, who will meet later to decide the issue. The possibility of night ball in the major leagues was not discussed.

Coaches placed on the active playing list because of the unprecedented plague of injuries and illnesses visited on the National League clubs this season must stay on the inactive lists once they have been returned to their original jobs, President Heydler said.

GORDON HEAD TO BE SCENE OF REGATTA

Programme Is Released for International Yachting Event Here Next Month

Sailing Race to Swiftsure Lightship and Return Is Feature Event on 4-Day Card

Gordon Head will be the scene of the 1930 Pacific International Yachting Association Regatta, the first four days of July and the programme of events has been released by the committee in charge, composed of members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, who will act as hosts this year to the visiting yachtsmen from neighboring cities.

The feature of the regatta will be the race to Swiftsure Lightship and return. Swiftsure is about sixty miles from Victoria and out in the open Pacific Ocean, several miles off Cape Flattery. Only the deep-sea sailing boats will enter, and some keen competition is expected. The race will take from three to four days depending upon the tides and sea. This feature of the regatta has been arranged by members of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, but will be open to any visiting yachtsmen.

Following is the complete programme as released last night by the regatta committee.

Athletics Cling To American Lead By Small Margin

Three Percentage Points Separates World Champions and Cleveland Indians for League Leadership; A's Beaten Yesterday by Detroit; Brooklyn Wins to Hold National League Lead; Charley Grimm's Home Run in Ninth With Bases Filled Beats Giants; Klein Continues Fine Hitting Performance.

The Brooklyn Robins are out in front of the National League pack by only three and a half games but the cutthroat actions of the New York Giants and Chicago Cubs makes that advantage look mountainous at this stage of the pennant race.

Charlie Grimm, the league champions' field captain, proved the big gun in the Cubs' victory yesterday. His home run with the bases full in the ninth inning decided the game, 8 to 5. The Giants' runs were made on home runs by Terry, Jackson, Allen, Leach and Hogan.

The Pittsburgh Pirates and Phillies staged a typical Pittsburgh-Philadelphia ball game. The latter winning a slugfest 18 to 14.

Chuck Klein hit in his twenty-fifth consecutive game and took the National League home run leadership with his nineteenth circuit drive.

Cincinnati Reds had little mercy on Burleigh Grimes and Bruce Cunningham, pounding out an 11 to 1 decision over the Boston Braves.

Ray Phelps turned in a neat pitching assignment to enable the Robins to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 5 to 3.

A'S CLING TO LEAD

By a margin of three percentage points the Philadelphia Athletics cling to the American League leadership as they lost to the Detroit Tigers, 9 to 8. The champions' percentage column reads .697 as against Cleveland's .694. The A's got away to an early lead but Ed Hopper pitched fine relief ball while Dals Alexander and Roy Johnson drove in seven runs. Johnson hit two home runs while Alexander got one with two men on base in the fifth.

Ted Lyons failed to win his tenth game of the season when the Boston Red Sox made it two straight over the Chicago White Sox, winning 6 to 3.

Washington Senators unleashed a battery in the last three innings to take the measure of the St. Louis Browns 9 to 7.

The Indians and New York Yankees were rained out at Cleveland.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Detroit, June 17.—The Tigers overcame a six-run lead yesterday to defeat Philadelphia, 9 to 3, and take the odd game of the series.

Young Seattle Girl Wants Arctic Again

Marion Swenson, icebound in Siberia last winter, longs for North Again

Olaf Swenson, Her Dad, Well-known Arctic Fur Trader, Is Undecided, However

Seattle, June 17.—Tentative plans are being made for Marion Swenson to return to the frozen north and repeat her famous journey on the Nanuk.

After all, Marion does have to go to school sometime, the president of the Swenson Fur Trading Company said in his discussion of the project.

"We might take a tutor. But you never know what will come up and the tutor would have to be picked carefully."

There's only the matter of school-work standing in the way.

EMPLOYMENT UNIFORMITY IS GOAL SOUGHT

Heenan, Federal Labor Minister, Deals With Conditions in Kenora Address

Kenora, Ont., June 17.—The working men of Canada, who created the wealth of the Dominion in the "fat months," should be assured of some of the profits in the "lean months," says Hon. Peter Heenan, Federal Minister of Labor.

Mr. Heenan, who is again a candidate in the riding of Kenora-Rainy River, addressing a campaign meeting here yesterday evening, dealt with the Liberal Government's record and the benefits it had brought the laboring man.

Speaking of the unemployment situation, Mr. Heenan said there was something better coming to the working people of Canada "than the mayors of towns running down to the seats of government, looking for tickets for soup."

He pointed out he must be allowed by the workers to make a fair deal with the employers. Unless the workers co-operated, nothing could be accomplished.

Conservative inconsistency. The minister charged the Conservatives were inconsistent in their plea for unemployment aid. Up to quite recently the Conservatives had advocated wholesale immigration. "Now," said Mr. Heenan, "they condemn the condition of unemployment."

"You can play political football with liquor traffic, perhaps, or the opium traffic, and you can do it with old age pensions, workers' compensation and roads for farmers," said Mr. Heenan, "but when it is attempted

The record of the King Government since it took office could not be successfully challenged, the Labor Minister asserted, nor could a charge that it was less progressive be sustained.

Power they would be less progressive in the future be sustained, hence, said Mr. Heenan, the opposition was resorting to provincial issues to prove its fitness for office.

Conservative inconsistency. The minister charged the Conservatives were inconsistent in their plea for unemployment aid. Up to quite recently the Conservatives had advocated wholesale immigration. "Now," said Mr. Heenan, "they condemn the condition of unemployment."

"You can play political football with liquor traffic, perhaps, or the opium traffic, and you can do it with old age pensions, workers' compensation and roads for farmers," said Mr. Heenan, "but when it is attempted

OCEAN GALES DELAY SHIPS BOUND HERE

Rochelle and Canadian Ranger, Which Docked To-day, Felt Storms Yesterday

Coastal Shipping Also Feels Effects of High Winds of Last Few Days

The high winds which have been sweeping over Victoria for the last few days have had their origin far out on the Pacific Ocean and inbound shipping from the Orient is being delayed, schedules of ships due here this week show. All boats are from six to twelve hours late and those due towards the end of the week are also expected to be behind time due to the storms out at sea.

The Kingsley freighter Rochelle and the Canadian National freighter Canadian Ranger both docked at the Ogden Point pier today around noon, after battling storms on the Pacific. The Rochelle was more than a day behind schedule while the Canadian Ranger was running several hours late. Masters of both ships reported heavy gales off the coast, the weather being particularly rough off Cape Flattery last night.

The O.S.K. liner Arabia Maru, inbound from Japan and China, had also evidently met rough weather for she will not dock here until early tomorrow morning. She was scheduled to dock here this morning and in Seattle late this afternoon. Other ships due here this week are the Niagara from Australia, New Zealand and Honolulu and the Empress of Russia from the Orient. They are not expected before the end of the week so it is not yet known if they have felt the effects of the storm.

Coastal shipping ran into choppy weather yesterday between Victoria and neighboring ports. The ferry steamer Olympic had the worst of the trips as she is forced out into the open sweep of the Pacific near Race Rocks while on her way from Victoria to Port Angeles. Yesterday afternoon she was forced to hug the shore close to Albert Head and William Head as far as Race Rocks and then cross over to the United States side and stay close to the shore there. In that way she did not get into the full swell although the detour took her a little longer to make the trip.

For 10 Long Years I Was A Slave to the Laxative Habit---Now I Never Take Laxatives of Any Kind

THOMAS C. MATTHEWS

From all sections of the United States and Canada where Sargon is available come hundreds of glowing letters telling of the almost unbelievable results obtained from use of this scientific formula.

Among these was a letter recently received from Mr. Thomas C. Matthews, well-known citizen of Denver, Colo., who said:

"I feel I am due you a testimonial of appreciation for what Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills have done for me.

"For more than ten years I suffered from an inactive torpid liver. I would have severe bilious attacks and constipation forced me to take some sort of laxative or cathartic almost daily.

It has now been thirty days since I completed the Sargon treatment and I no longer find it necessary to take pills or laxatives of any kind. For the first time in years my liver is in an active, healthy condition and my bowels are as regular as clockwork. Only those who have suffered with this terrible affliction can understand what a wonderful relief this has been to a man of my age. I am sixty years old and have taken so many medicines without relief that I had just reached the point where I thought nothing would help me.

"My advice to anyone needing a strength-building medicine or something to straighten out an inactive liver and relieve constipation is by all means to start taking Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills." Mr. Matthews resides at 1441 Wazze St., Denver.

Action of Sargon Explained

The above statement by Mr. Matthews is a typical example of just what Sargon means to humanity. Sargon not only restores his health by building up his bodily vigor, but it relieved him of constipation and indigestion from which he had suffered for years.

Mr. Matthews suffered principally from the effects of a torpid, inactive liver — he was not getting enough bile. For almost ten years he was forced to take laxatives and purgatives almost daily. This only aggravated his trouble. The more he took the more he had to take — he read about the Sargon treatment in the Denver papers; he gave the medicine a trial; and now, according to his own statement, this new and modern compound completely relieved him of constipation and other troubles of ten years' standing and he no longer finds it necessary to take laxatives or purgatives of any kind.

A proper flow of bile is absolutely essential to good health because it performs five all-important functions:

First—It is a marvelous laxative and is Nature's great weapon against constipation. When the flow of bile is not sufficient, constipation inevitably follows — and when the flow of bile is restored to normal, constipation rarely exists.

Second—It is a powerful digestant without which sound digestion is impossible.

Third — It is an anti-acid and counteracts hyper-acidity.

Fourth—It is Nature's internal antiseptic and combats putrefaction and the formation of gas in the intestines.

Fifth—A proper flow of bile is necessary to a normal production of pancreatic juice which plays an important part in the digestive processes.

It can readily be seen, therefore, that this body fluid which we call bile, is a veritable health sustaining fluid; if the liver fails to manufacture and deliver into the intestinal tract the amount of bile which is required by nature in the average individual, the entire system is deranged and good health is impossible.

Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills not only contain some of the most powerful stimulants to the bile secreting activity of the liver known, but they also contain other ingredients of recognized therapeutic value which impart tone and strength to the entire system, and are highly valuable for their appetite, digestion, assimilation and elimination.

Sargon's record of achievement is an open book to all. Its reputation is based on actual results, not with promises, and only those who have put it to the test know of its real powers.

Sargon may now be obtained at all Owl Drug Stores in Victoria and Vancouver and Bessy Drug Store at New Westminster. (Adv.)

The Sunday Dinner

By OSCAR DE WARDON

Shrimp cocktail, cream of celery, roasted loin of veal, scalloped potatoes, baked tomatoes, Waldorf salad, Bavarian cream, New Waldorf coffee.

Roasted Loin of Veal
Saw the spine and whatever hipbone remains from the fine, white fresh fat loin of veal with the kidney. Season the loin with 1½ tablespoons salt and one heaping teaspoon pepper, and roll the flank part neatly over the kidney, tying it with a string.

Have ready a light buttered roasting pan, place the loin in it, pour in one wineglass of water, and put a few bits of butter here and there over the meat; then cover its entire length with a piece of well-buttered paper. Place the pan in a moderate oven, and roast for 1½ hours, basting often with its own gravy.

Remove from the oven, untie and place it on a hot water dish. Add three tablespoons broth to the gravy in the pan, skim off the fat and reduce it to the consistency of half glaze. Strain through a sieve, either over the roasted meat or into a sauceboat, and serve at once.

Bavarian Cream, New Waldorf
This cream is served cold, or it is sometimes used to fill a charlotte russe. To one pint of thick cream add sufficient sugar to sweeten it and flavor with vanilla or lemon.

Whisk the cream to a froth, which should be removed as rapidly as it

MOOSE END CONVENTION

Fifteenth Annual Session of Northwest Association Concluded at Hoquiam

Discussion of financial conditions in the United States, drill and ritualistic contests and election of officers, featured the fifteenth annual convention of the Northwest Moose Association at Hoquiam, Wash. The event proved successful in every respect. Tacoma was selected as the convention city for 1931, after Melvin G. Tennent, mayor of that city, had requested the gathering to be held there next year.

The degree team of Buckley, Wash., won the ritualistic contest in class "A" and Aberdeen Lodge in class "B." Portland won the men's drill competition and Tacoma the drum corps contests.

Vancouver's ladies team brought honor to the province by winning the drill contest from Seattle ladies, for the third year in succession, with thirty-seven points out of a possible 100.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, T. G. Ryan, Portland, Ore.; first vice-president, C. E. Copeland, Victoria, B.C.; second vice-president, W. W. Leckie, Seattle, Wash.; third vice-president, Fred J. Lake, Spokane; secretary-treasurer, J. P. Pearce, Victoria, B.C.; prelate, E. T. Taylor, Coeur d'Alene, Idaho; sergeant-at-arms, C. Ellinger, Mt. Vernon, Wash.; inner guard, F. N. Brannan, Seattle, Wash. (fifteenth year); outer guard, G. Anderson, Rainier, Ore.

The officers were installed by J. Sartori, Supreme Councilman of Spokane, Wash.

A monster street parade followed by the taking of the convention photo and contests for drill and drum corps at Emerson Field, Hoquiam, brought the proceedings to a close.

The delegation from Victoria Lodge 1390 consisted of Dr. C. B. Mess, W. D. Taylor, S. Honeychurch, J. Leask, W. Kettie, T. W. Spouse, J. P. Pearce, O. J. Boulton and A. Spouse.

NINETY-YEAR-OLD DOCTOR WRITES BEST SELLER

Reuter's Special to The Victoria Times
London, June 17.—Sir James Crichton-Browne, who is ninety, has in "What the Doctor Thought," put together a collection of excellent stories and reminiscences, which is proving to be a best seller here. Sir James has a delightfully quiet, dry humor, which comes out in the tale of an English clergyman with a rich living, "a man of wealth and aristocratic connections, who went through the formal duties of his office, but did not set much store by precept or example."

"His irregularities ultimately roused displeasure among some of the more punctilious of his parishioners, who complained to the Bishop that his behavior in the rectory garden with a young and good-looking housekeeper was unbecomingly. On the Bishop communicating with him on the subject, the rector replied that no complaint of the kind should occur again, and proceeded to build a wall twelve feet high around the garden."

Here is another example of Sir James's appreciation of an amusing rector: "Mrs. Creighton, wife of the Bishop of London, was lecturing at Walthamstow to working women on 'Domestic Life.' When the lecture was over, Miss Gregory, daughter of the Dean of St. Paul's, asked one of the women what she thought of the address."

"Oh, the woman replied, 'It was very good. She gave us some useful hints about home life, but she didn't tell us what she does when her husband comes home drunk.'"

"MR. PICCADILLY"
There is much in the book about Scotland. One anecdote turns on the old custom of calling a Highland landowner by the name of his residence, not by his own name. "To speak of Macpherson, MacKenzie or Stewart would not identify a man, but Cluny, Auchkeoch, or Appin does so at once."

A man in Edinburgh, having a friend from London staying with him, took him to a tea-party at the house of an old Scottish woman, and introduced him as Mr. Beaumont. "Yes, the old lady said, 'but where does he live?'" "Oh, in Piccadilly," he replied. He was much amused to hear his hostess shortly afterwards asking his friend, "Now, Piccadilly, will you have another cup of tea?"

Metropolitan W.M.S.—Metropolitan W.M.S. held its half-yearly meeting Monday, June 17, in the schoolroom, the president, Miss Bralk, in charge. After the devotional period, the Bible reading from Romans 12 was given by Mrs. Perinelli. The half yearly reports of the various departments were given, showing much earnest co-operation and conscientious work. The ambitions of the mission band outlined by the capable leader, Miss Mary Cliff, won enthusiastic approval from the society. Miss Baker for the finance committee made an eloquent appeal. Mrs. Edie read a letter from Rev. Geo. Knox of Cape Mudge Marine Mission, describing in an instructive manner his work of preaching and teaching at thirty-six stations among the Indians. As items that gave much pleasure to all was a solo, "The Silent Voice," delightfully rendered by Mrs. Matcham and sympathetically accompanied by Mrs. White, a visitor from Regina. Many visitors were welcomed, also Mrs. Pendraper after her enforced absence through illness. The combined July and August meetings will be in the nature of a garden party some time in July.

NEWS IN BRIEF

At the Bible class held in the Reformed Episcopal Sunday Schoolroom, on Sunday next, at 4 p.m., a number of interesting letters from China will be read.

The case of Hugh E. Caldwell and Thomas De Macdonald was adjourned until Friday in the City Police Court this morning. The men are charged with soliciting for sightseeing tours at the C.P.R. dock.

"Spiritual Powers and Their Unfoldment" will be the title of a lecture by Professor Mohr at 8 o'clock to-night in Suite 311 of the Pemberton Building. Character readings will follow the lecture which will be without charge. Everyone is invited.

A chimney fire at 560 Johnson Street at 3.17 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and a small blaze in the sawdust at Moore's Whittington lumber yard, two hours later, were extinguished by the Victoria Fire Department before any serious damage was done.

A meeting to discuss the proposed Federation of Choral Societies will be held in the New Thought Temple on Port Street this evening at 8 o'clock. All members of choral and choral societies in Victoria and vicinity are cordially invited to attend.

With J. Martin in the chair, more than one hundred and fifty natives of Cornwall attended the first meeting of the Victoria Cornish Association last Friday night in the Trades and Labor Hall. Meetings are to be held every two weeks, and it is hoped that more of the one thousand Cornishmen in the city will attend.

Lieut.-Col. Monk, officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the Fifth (B.C.) Coast Brigade, C.A., will be "at home" to their friends at Port Macaulay on Wednesday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock. Sports will be held and the brigade band will be in attendance. All officers of the reserve brigade and ex-members are specially invited to attend.

Fifty-fifth and 56th Batteries of the Fifth (B.C.) Coast Brigade C.A. will carry out gun practice from Esquimalt on the following dates: Tuesday, June 17; Thursday, June 19; Friday, June 20; Saturday, June 21; Monday, June 23; Tuesday, June 24; Wednesday, June 25; Thursday, June 26; Friday, June 27 and Saturday, June 28.

Wednesday League cricket matches scheduled to-morrow follow: St. Aidan's vs. Hudson's Bay at Work Point; Five C's vs. T. and V. at Beacon Hill. On Thursday night a special meeting of the league will be held at 8.30 o'clock at the Tillamook Club to select an all-star team to play in Vancouver on July 1.

A special meeting of the Britannia Branch Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., will be held to-night in their new headquarters at 115 View Street at 8 o'clock. The delegates who attended the provincial convention at Nelson will give their report. A large attendance of members is expected to be present. Important business will be discussed.

The Orangemen of Victoria had a busy and enjoyable week with the visit of the Right Worshipful Grand Master Bro. Jago, who was met at the boat by the county lodge officers. Wor. Bro. Carnduff conveyed him to all places of interest. All the primary lodges were visited and a banquet was tendered by the combined lodges of the city. An excellent musical programme was enjoyed by all present. A dance was staged by Sir Edward Carson Lodge on Friday evening from 8.30 to 11.30, to the strains of the Melodians Orchestra. The week's festivities ended on Saturday night at a meeting of the county lodge when all preparations were made for July 12 celebration, which will be held at Vancouver.

MUST CREATE

DEMAND BY LOW

PRICE LEVELS

Overproduction Should Be Met by Drastic Methods, Says Edwin Dottridge

Steadily Developing Market in Great Britain for B.C. Apples

"The world is suffering from over-production and the situation must be met by aggressive methods in order to give proper stimulation to a flagging market," said Edwin T. Dottridge, C.B.E., of London, Eng., who is on a tour of Canada and the United States to establish trade connections.

In giving his views as to the possible solution of the problem of trade stagnation, Mr. Dottridge, at the Empress Hotel to-day, said: "Speaking on broad lines, we must create the demand so as to catch up with production."

"We must be satisfied with a new level of prices in order to encourage the demand for commodities and then readjust prices when the demand, sufficient to deal with the increased production has been re-created. ATTRACTIVE PRICES

"Put the price of a commodity at an attractive level to start with and the consumer will be given an incentive to continue buying even if the prices are subsequently raised to meet the costs of production."

"Competition," went on Mr. Dottridge, "is so keen to-day that it will not permit the introduction of an intermediary. The producer has to get as near to the consumer as possible."

Mr. Dottridge is chairman of the well-known London firm of produce merchants, Joseph Travers and Sons, Ltd.

The firm was established in the year 1866, at the time of the great fire in London.

Fresh fruits are handled by the company in such large quantities that a separate branch is established in Covent Garden.

Branches are maintained in various parts of the world, including one at Singapore and Bombay.

Before coming to Victoria, Mr. Dottridge visited Virginia, California and spent some time in the Hood River Valley.

B.C. FRUIT DEMAND

He believes there is a steadily developing market in Great Britain for British Columbia apples and other fruits.

Mr. Dottridge was decorated with the C.B.E. for war services, when he was attached to the Foreign Office.

Over One Hundred Delegates Present When Chairman Baldwin Opened Session

Banquet at Empress To-morrow Evening Will Terminate Conference

When Chairman W. L. Baldwin called the convention of the Reliance Life Insurance Company of Pittsburgh to order this morning the Princess Louise salon at the Empress Hotel was crowded with delegates.

The convention, which will terminate with a banquet to-morrow evening, is attended by 125 delegates from all over the United States.

Vice-president E. G. McCormack extended an address of welcome in the name of H. G. Scott, senior vice-president.

"Life underwriting is a field in which individualism has the freest play," said J. F. Johns, supervisor of the Northern California department, in speaking this forenoon on "Life Insurance as a Profession."

"You choose your hours of work, your methods of work, your clientele. You specialize, if you wish in half a dozen lines: personal insurance, income insurance, business insurance, partnership insurance, inheritance tax and so forth—or you can cultivate the whole field of life insurance."

"Statistics show that you have received a larger monetary reward for your efforts than the average man engaged in any other business. Certainly any qualified underwriter earns more than the average lawyer, dentist, physician, preacher or teacher."

"For want of better evidence to prove my statements, let us glance at the average earnings of the thirty-five leaders of the Western Pennsylvania department last year—$10,472.57, their average renewals being approximately $400 per month."

Local Boy Singer

Wins High Honors

DOUGLAS FIRTH

thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Firth, 1015 Chamberlain Street, who won the medal and challenge cup for the boys' solo, under fifteen years, at the recent B.C. Music Festival held at Vancouver. There were thirty-five competitors from all parts of the Pacific Northwest and the success of the Victoria boy was a notable one. He also won the medal for election for boys under fourteen years. Dr. Tysoe, adjudicator of the boys' solo, complimented the local boy on his excellent rendering of his piece, particularly praising his clear diction and wonderful adaptability. Dr. Ford, adjudicator of the election class, was loud in praise of the Victoria boy's portrayal. Two weeks previous to his taking part in the festival Douglas gained high honors for voice production in the Trinity College, London, Eng., singing examinations held in Victoria. Besides his musical talents Douglas is a clever athlete and of junior championship calibre as a swimmer.

Speaking of the growth of this business, he said that in 1918 the first airmail service in the United States from Washington to New York was only 220 miles. The following year the government extended the route from New York to Chicago.

In those days, he said, the flight between the two cities was unusually hazardous owing to poor weather conditions, insufficient equipment and poor landing facilities.

RECENT DEVELOPMENT

"It has been only in the last two years that aviation has gone from a hobby to a business," he said, "and it is now a fact that the increase in landing bases has assisted in this development."

Both mail and passenger lines have spread rapidly over the continent. In Seattle itself, he said, two new routes had been inaugurated between that city and Tacoma and St. Paul.

PAYING BETTER

He also spoke of the proposed increase in transportation between Victoria and Seattle by means of the Alaska-Washington Airways of B.C. He also stated that passenger traffic was becoming more and more a paying proposition as was shown in the figures for traffic to and from Victoria.

Illustrating the saving of time, Major Logg stated that a person boarding a plane at Los Angeles would arrive in Seattle eleven hours later.

Letting out air mail contracts, building of auxiliary fields at every thirty miles along regular routes and light and radio beacons had all played a prominent part in the development of the commercial flying in the United States, Major Logg stated.

At present radio weather reports were being transmitted to planes in flight, he added, saying that in time landings would be possible by means of radio direction.

During his talk Major Logg spoke of his trip from Seattle to New York by air. He outlined the different obstacles and possibilities in various cities along the route.

Major Logg congratulated local airmen on the fine turn at the Lansdowne Road Airport, stating

TO-DAY'S GRAIN MARKETS

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited.)
Winnipeg, June 17.—Wheat: There was a decided change in sentiment today and the wheat market was also as strong as was weak yesterday with prices at top levels being 3½ cents above the previous close. Undoubtedly the drastic break of yesterday resulted in a big export business being worked late yesterday and overnight.
Sales that could be confirmed out of this market totaled three million, and New York also reported a good business and North American sales probably reached 5,000,000 bushels. There was good buying in the pit by continental houses throughout the day, while there was considerable short covering going on. On the upturn there was good selling by commission houses and others who had bought on the break yesterday.

There was a good general demand for all grades of cash wheat at spreads ranging from unchanged to as much as one cent better, but large holders were not inclined to offer very freely. There was no improvement in the flour trade, but foreign inquiry was somewhat better. Some unfavorable reports were received from Alberta and Saskatchewan.

High winds are again prevailing in certain parts of the country, with soft drifting in southern Alberta, where the rain falls were light. The weather in western Canada was clear, with temperatures twenty-four hours with temperatures moderately high in Alberta and western Saskatchewan.

The local market gave evidence today that it was pretty well liquidated for the time being at least, and offerings were very much lighter than came out yesterday, and prices were able to hold around top levels although a little erratic at times. The market could easily have been better for a day or two. Wheat closed right at the top 3½ to 3¾ higher.

Coarse grains: These markets all made a good recovery today and closed considerably higher. There was further business to eastern Canada in low grade oats and barley, and the inquiry was said to be improved. Barley offerings are very light, and all indications are that barley has been well liquidated. Oats were 1½ to 1¾ higher, 2½ higher, rye 2½ up.

Flax: This market was decidedly higher in the nearby months, which closed 2½ up, while October finished 2 cents up. The market was very firm for flax today, but actual business was very small.

Increased returns

Widespread investment connections enable The Canada Trust Company to secure a higher average rate of interest upon estate funds than the average individual executor or trustee could obtain. And The Canada Trust Company's fee for administering an estate is no more than would be allowed an individual executor. The fee—in either case—is fixed by the Court.

WHITNEY LETTER

(By Branson, Brown & Co. Limited)

New York, June 17.—Whitney of Wall Street Financial Bureau says to-day:

EXPECT BOTTOM TO-DAY

"Some time ago, as particularly pointed out yesterday, the market gave indications as to the amount of liquidation it would encounter, and that this could be expected in its ultimate aspect, and irrespective of intermediate rallies, to produce in the nature of a total decline. The statement was made that in its broader aspect the declining tendencies then in evidence could not be expected to come to rest until the market, as indicated by the Dow Jones industrial averages, had placed itself in the 232-5 range. In yesterday's market the closing prices have been brought within that range, and there was some real liquidation in yesterday's market, in conjunction with the obviously heavy margin calls which will go out before the opening to-day. It may well be that as a definite stopping point the figure given you will prove a bit too high, and that during the day the market will decline somewhat below that figure by adding further decline during the first two hours to those prices registered at the close.

"In spite of this outlook I believe that, having reached our objective on the downside, the forces making for a turn are literally within a matter of hours of the point where they will make their appearance, so that we can consider whatever further decline of the day as a turnabout, and that we are going to have as having the immediate outlook for being as short-lived as it will be drastic. In other words, expect the latter part of to-day's session to show us a turnabout, and a close which will represent enough of a rally to not only wipe out the day's earlier declines, but to take back some of the declines of yesterday by closing higher to-night than last night.

"Added to the severe drenching of bad news under which the market closed last week, has been a further decline in July wheat, which is now at practically 96 cents, and even the December position breaking a dollar, new lows for cotton and silver, and a presidential statement that he will press the tariff bill, which the latter feature receive its definite forecast in Senator Reed's speech last Thursday. I believe that the President's statement simply removes the last ray of hope which was being held out for its defeat.

"The important thing to remember is that both the week-end news and that which you have been getting in the last few days, all constitute the absolutely normal amount and nature of bad news that properly comes at the end of a protracted decline such as we have witnessed, and that which invariably accompanies the attainment of a low point in the market, as indicated by the Dow Jones averages.

STOCKS LOWER ON LIQUIDATING; COPPER DROPS

Red Metal Price Breaks 12-Cent Level and is Now Quoted at 11 3-4

Heavy Dumping of Shares on First Half Hour; Anaconda Leads Metals Off

List Recovers Sharply From Lows; Industrials Still Under Monday Close

New York, June 17.—After Monday's 14 1/2-point straight drop in the average of industrial stocks on the New York Stock Exchange, the list opened still weaker to-day with about half the stocks on the whole boarding making new lows for the year.

In the first half-hour there was tremendous dumping of stocks by weak holders, with sales for that thirty-minute period reaching a total of 1,200,000 shares, which would be at the rate of more than 12,000,000 shares a day.

However, after the first half hour the market began to stiffen and was strong for the rest of the day, but its recovery was not sufficient to bring the industrial averages at the close up to over yesterday's closing figures.

COPPER PRICE CUT AGAIN

Almost everything in the copper list slumped to new lows for the year as a result of the news that copper had broken the 12-cent price and was selling at 11 3/4 cents a pound. Anaconda dropped to 46 1/2 cents, its first drop since 1928, and is now selling at about one-third of what it was selling for several months ago.

U. S. Steel from a low of 15 1/2 to 16 1/2, a gain of about 1/2 points over Monday's close.

Radio broke to 35 1/2, Auburn Motor to 10 1/2, Bethlehem Steel to 63 1/2, Standard of New Jersey to 63 1/2.

AVERAGES MIXED

New York, June 17 (B.C. Bond).—At the close of the market this afternoon the Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks stood at 225.37, off 1.48 points from the day before, for 20 shares at 131.33, up 4.48 points, and for 20 utilities at 83.10, off 0.11 points.

Sales for the day totaled 5,007,200 shares.

Westinghouse rallied nearly 3 points from its early low, and Worthington Pump rallied more than 10 points to 127.

WATCHING THIS SUPPORT LEVEL

Experienced observers were watching the market closely to see what sort of support would develop following Monday's break in the Dow Jones industrial average to the 230 level. This is the point at which resistance was established on December 20 on the secondary reaction that followed the first rebound from the November 18 low. It is also the level at which support was encountered on October 28 in the first half of the October-November debacle.

It was true that the compilation subsequently dropped to 189.68 on November 13, but this break may be attributed to forced liquidation under bulky circumstances.

Since the Dow Jones industrial average has now stopped around the 230 level on three different occasions, this level appears to be a technical point of possibly important importance.

Should it be penetrated further, it probably would indicate further extension of the downward movement. On the other hand, if the level is not broken, the market will have received a technical assurance of its ability to resist further downward efforts to break the industrial average below that level.

LACK OF CONFIDENCE REFLECTED

The Journal of Commerce says that the liquidation this week does not reflect any particular news development, but that it has been the reason of a general lack of confidence in the early recovery of business sufficient to justify optimism as to the trend of corporate earnings.

The present movement, The Journal says, certainly marks a wholesale adjustment of speculative valuations and the process relates to a revised picture of the business outlook, but whether it has any more permanent meaning may be doubted.

BUSINESS DISAPPOINTED

"Liquidation of stocks has been doubly severe perhaps because of the acute disappointment over business prospects, when so much hope was held that betterment would occur no later than the end of the past quarter," says the Journal. "Even should the definite improvement develop no earlier than late in the year, the market, it would seem, has gone far toward discounting."

BOND MARKET

The N.Y. American to-day says: "Interests who were responsible for the last sharp uprush in Vanadium are again becoming interested in the stock."

"Accumulation by banking interests has been evident in National Biscuits and American Can."

"Recent selling has been liquidation by those who realize that a bond market is the first essential to business revival and with the banking world devoting most of its attention to making purchases of a bond market is suffering from virtual neglect."

CHANCE FOR BARGAIN HUNTERS

Wall Street Mirror to-day issued the following to its clients: "Prices and settlement have reached the point where, in addition to distress selling, mob psychology might be substituted for sound reasoning."

"If such a situation should occur, the bargain hunter should be quick to take advantage of it. There is little doubt in the minds of keen observers that present prices in a number of leading stocks are well below what would represent real values. However, with the bear party appearing to be in complete control of the market, these facts are for the moment forgotten."

"At some point in to-day's session the selling will see a temporary abatement from this level a trading rally will be observed, and it will be sharp and quick when it puts in an appearance and will be of sufficient duration to be well worth the chance of making purchases of the leading issues. Dealings during the first hour should be closely watched and will probably give the indication of the market for the balance of the day."

Million-volt Plant Shipped to Russia

Pittsburgh, June 17.—Russian students of electrical engineering will soon be experimenting with American-made lightning, when the 1,000,000-volt testing machine made by the General Electric Company here installed at Leningrad. The outfit, half as large as the one installed at the Leland Stanford University a few years ago, will be erected in the Electro-Technical Institute at Leningrad. It will be used for general testing purposes and for the study of various high voltage phenomena.

The equipment, the first built at Pittsburgh for a foreign country, was shipped with cores and coils completely immersed in oil, ready for operation upon arrival. Each transformer weighs approximately twenty tons.

ASCOT STAKES TO-DAY WON BY BONNY BOY II

stakes were $2,000, with extras, and the distance two miles.

KING AND QUEEN ATTEND

The opening of the week's racing was attended by the King and Queen and many of Great Britain's fashionable world.

GOLD VASE

General Charles Lambton's Trindon won the Ascot Gold Vase.

Trindon, by Son-in-law from Timeshall, won by two lengths, while there was a short head between A. Dwyer's Brother-in-law, which finished second, and Lord Harwood's Collingham, which finished third. Ten ran.

The betting was 6 to 4, 6 to 1 and 100 to 8.

The Vase has a value of $250, with $1,000 and extras. The distance is two miles.

GOVERNMENT STAKES

Lord Elmsmere's Lennarchus captured the Coventry Stakes of £1,000 by one length from Sir Andrew, owned by William Woodward, noted United States sportsman.

Sir Andrew was three lengths ahead of Lord Allendale's Paphian.

Twelve horses ran the distance of five furlongs. The betting was 9 to 2, 6 to 2 and 4 to 1.

U. S. TARIFF BILL IS SIGNED BY PRESIDENT

A list of seventy-five items is placed on the free list.

BRITISH NEWS

London, June 17.—Although the British press as a whole has not yet reacted to the enactment of the tariff bill in the United States, some of the leading organs have voiced their views on the effect the new rates will have on the foreign trade of the republic. Such expression as has appeared takes the view the effect will be decidedly adverse.

The London Times, pointing out that over a score of foreign countries already have protested against the provisions of the tariff, says several of them "have made it plain that if the United States is resolved not to buy from them, they will have a reduce their trade with the United States."

The paper continues:

"In old conditions, such protests could be and were regarded with indifference. The indifference still persists, at any rate in Congress, but it is doubtful whether it is justified in the altered economic conditions to-day."

FIELD OF REPRISALS

Expressing the view that the chief interest in the new tariff for students of practical economics lies "in the object lesson it affords of the dangerous issue of a valuable principle." The London Telegraph, life its contemporaries, points to protests to the United States from foreign governments and adds:

"The feeling that fiscal reprisals are a certainty and knowledge of their being already on foot in Canada and elsewhere has aroused grave misgivings in a community to which the preservation of the tariff is a matter of its place in foreign markets are to-day vital."

THE PEACOCK'S TAIL

By
Mrs. ROMILLY FEDDEN

"Ah, I am glad that you saw him. That face of mine is dying out. You know his story; every one does. A subaltern at Gibraltar he was, and he was a romantic figure, so popular that it is difficult now to separate truth from legend. Such stories as were told about him! But he was extraordinary brave. One of those men who do not know fear. He loved adventure for its own sake, though that did not prevent his amassing a fortune. He could not help it. Sultans fought for his favor. He owned Morocco, held its fate in his hands. If he had been a bigger man, a man of greater principle, he might have used his influence to great imperial ends, and Morocco might to-day be a part of the English Eastern Empire. As it was, he was content to live every day to the full, to wield an unparalleled personal influence, the real ruler of Morocco, behind the Sultan's throne. He was one of that group of men who pampered the young Sultan—a mere boy—and pandered to his love of novelty. You know the stories: the fountain of scent, the gold cameras, the silver bicycles, the gilded coach drawn by slaves. Not a creditable page."

"But surely he reformed abuses, reorganized the army? I have heard—"

"The army, yes. And to give him his due, he would probably have brought in many other reforms, had he not found that his own position depended upon the complaisance of a corrupt Pasha and court, who were opposed to all reform. He drew up a just scheme of taxation, but withdrew it when he saw that pushing it would only end in his own downfall. Doubtless in his youth he had great ambitions, but the longer you live in the East, the more surely do you realize that you cannot impose here any Western code. You know that."

Leslie nodded.

"Of course such a man was a great lover. His life was full of amatory adventure. But this girl's mother was the love of his life. He met her in Fez. She was the daughter of a Berber chief: one of those Princes of the Atlas who own no sovereign; who are amongst the proudest, the fiercest, the most generous men alive. Her mother was a Spanish captive of a great family. The girl was in Fez in her father's train, and the rumor of her beauty got about. These things are known. Nicholson was fascinated by the story, her lineage, her beauty. And at a moment when the Sultan would have given him the stars from the sky, he asked for her. The Sultan made a demand for her to the old chief on behalf of Nicholson, whose fame was known beyond the Atlas, and Nicholson got her. She was the great passion of his life. I've met men who had seen her, seen Nicholson with her at Fez. She must have been exceptionally beautiful and charming. Intelligent too. Nicholson worshipped her. He had her taught. She lived only to please him, and died giving birth to his child."

There was silence for a moment.

"And the child?" Leslie's voice was low.

Rosette sighed. "She was the apple of her father's eye. He had no son, but she was son and daughter. She had the beauty of her mother, the charm of the East, with his own reckless spirit, his own contempt of danger. She lived like a queen in his palace in Fez, surrounded by the finest of his court. She was the pride of his life. Yet while she accepted his homage, she never forgot the billmen; not the Moors, or the child of the hidalgo, and though she adored her father, she hated the English. This was the result, I believe, of her tutelage under a Spanish governor, a lady who was engaged by Nicholson when the girl was growing up. After Nicholson's death, just before the massacre in Fez, which they said would never have taken place if he had been alive, the girl was heart-broken. She would not eat nor sleep nor speak. Finally the sultan brought her away from Fez by main force, took an old palace here out of the town, and there they have been ever since. The girl has fortune. She has once been to England. The King received her—her father's daughter. She bears his name, but she would have none of our life. She returned with the sultan, and lives here, independent, wilful, fearless, indifferent to the opinion of the society of the place. They, of course, alternately court and abuse her. She does not try to shock them. She really does not care what any one thinks. She really does what she pleases. And to make an end of a long story, I believe that it was Concha Nicholson who danced for us to-night. Why she did it, I cannot say. Probably a caprice."

"But isn't there any one to stop her?" Leslie cried. "A girl so young?"

"Twenty."

"A lady. It's monstrous. Even in these days."

Rosette shook her head. "No one has any authority over her. She's an amazing jumble of contradictions. Gentle and charming at times. But with Nicholson's roving blood and quivering spirit—poor child."

He turned his back to Leslie, looking fustily for something which he could not find.

Leslie rose slowly. "How will it end?" he asked blankly.

Rosette turned and met his eyes. "God knows," he said. "Am nobody cares. That's the pity of it—so young, so beautiful, so gifted, so gallant, and no one to care. Good-night."

CHAPTER X

Leslie closed the door of his room. It was one stride only to the light above the dressing-table. He opened the door and stepped out. He was to say to him, this strange, astounding, fascinating child who could dance like the stars, ride like a centaur, who was the daughter of Nicholson, his hero—his lady of the olive wood? He drew the crumpled flower from his pocket, crimson and faded, holding the tiny slip of paper in his heart. With a mounting sense of excitement and a thrill of ecstasy, he unfolded and smoothed the tiny scroll. Upon it was written in lines in French: "Stop; they do not need your sewing machines in El Foukara."

He laughed. He crushed the paper to bits and threw it away. He read it again, smoothed it, re-read the words and again laughed, as he turned with it again, crushed in his palm, to pace the room.

Of course she did not expect him to heed her warning, she of the blood of heroes! Yet she had sent it. Why? Because she feared for him? Did she care then a little? Could she care a little for anything or anybody? Did he not know that with her it would be all for all?

Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 18, 1930

Astrologers read this as rather an important day in planetary government. It is a time to plan constructive work and to war to recognition. It is a time when the early morning stars to favor those who work with the hands and is fortunate for athletes.

Baseball appears to be subject to the most suspicious rule of the stars, making for even greater enthusiasm than has been manifested in previous years.

This is not a lucky day for love affairs and most disappointing for all who flourish in the silly season.

Under this planetary rule women are not likely to benefit. They should devote attention to domestic rather than public affairs. Although this may appear a popular date for June weddings the stars counsel the application of patience and diplomacy to all new partnerships in life.

There is promise to-day for all who are interested in aviation. New inventions are to extend the popularity of airplanes and to assure safety. It is predicted that fame is to come to a group of men and women new in the third decade of their lives, astronauts foremost.

Those who are to take the places of the aged now called are well on their way to recognition. It is predicted that while a few women are to earn more or less through public service, the seeds of that success will be sown for true greatness is to be attained in the arts. Better conditions in India are prophesied through some sort of compromise or modification in British policies.

Persons whose birthdays it is have the assurance of a year that should bring fair returns for industry. Courtship may not be better.

Children born on this day probably will be exceedingly painstaking and accurate in whatever they do. The subjects of this sign are generally very industrious.

Franklin Fairbanks, American inventor, was born on this day, 1853.

SUMMER PICTURES

For summer, take down the heavy paintings and too colorful pictures, when you take down the winter drapes. For very little money you can put up pretty prints, framed in narrow silver frames or narrow frames painted to match your woodwork or your modernistic furniture.

BEDTIME STORY

Uncle Wiggily's Green Dragon

(Copyright, 1930)

By HOWARD E. GARIS

Uncle Wiggily was in his garden one day, pulling weeds from among the rows of green lettuce, when he heard some loud shuffling.

"What's that?" asked the rabbit gentleman, and he twinkled his pink nose. "Except for his nose, Mr. Longears was alone in his garden. 'I wonder who shuffling?' went on the rabbit.

In another moment he learned, for up the path came running Baby Buntie as fast as she could hop, and she looked up as though she were a bit frightened.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" gasped the little orphan rabbit. "You ought to see it!"

"What now?" asked Mr. Longears with a laugh. "Have you found another little cat up in the pussy willow tree, Buntie, or a puppy in the dog-wood bush?"

"No, Uncle Wiggily. It's more terrible than that!" said Buntie, her breath coming and going very fast. "You ought to see it! Oh, you just ought to come and see it!"

"What?" asked Uncle Wiggily, putting his paw around the little orphan bunny.

"It's a dragon!" went on Buntie. "You ought to see it!"

"Yes, but what is it I ought to see?" asked her uncle. "Calm yourself and tell me, Buntie."

There's your green dragon!

So Buntie calmed herself and then she said:

"It's a green dragon! A big, wiggling, green dragon down in the brook and he shook his tail at me!"

"Nonsense, Buntie!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "There isn't any such thing as a dragon, except in Chinese fairy stories. And even if there were dragons they wouldn't hurt you!"

"Wouldn't they?" asked Baby Buntie and her heart wasn't beating so fast now.

"No, indeed," answered Uncle Wiggily. "But I am sure you saw no green dragon in our brook."

"Oh, excuse me, Uncle Wiggily, for saying different," spoke the little orphan rabbit politely. "But I did. It's an awful green dragon!"

"Nonsense!" chuckled the rabbit gentleman. "You must have fallen asleep in the warm sun and then you dreamed about a dragon about a dragon!"

Before Buntie could say she didn't, up the path came running Jingle and Jangle, the twin rabbits.

"Oh, Daddies!" cried Jingle. "There's a dragon in the brook! A big, long, wiggling, green dragon in the brook!" cried Jangle and Jangle together, just like twins, which they were.

"There! What did I tell you?" asked Baby Buntie.

Uncle Wiggily straightened up for his back seamed from leaning over to pull out the weeds. Then he said:

"I'll go down to the brook with you and have a look at this green dragon as you call it. I am sure it will be nothing. And as for dragons, why, you don't even know what they are. You never saw one."

"I saw a picture of one," said Buntie. "It was long and green and it had forty sixteen legs and smoke and fire come out of its mouth."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "You aren't so silly as to tell me smoke and fire came out of the mouth of this green dragon you say you saw in our brook, my dear little Buntie, and the smoke and fire come out of water!"

"Well, maybe there wasn't any smoke or fire," said Jingle.

"But I saw the dragon's long, green tail in the water!" said Jangle. "And I saw its head and big eyes like saucers," said Buntie.

"There! See it!" cried Buntie, pointing.

"Oh, isn't it terrible!" shouted Jingle and Jangle.

Uncle Wiggily picked up a long stick. "What are you going to do?" he exclaimed Buntie.

"I'll lift out that green dragon so you can see how silly you were!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. The little rabbit girls started to run away, but before they had gone far Uncle Wiggily called to them to come back. And they saw him lifting out on the end of his stick a long, green, slimy, wet streamer of a weed that grows in brooks.

"That's your green dragon!" chuckled Uncle Wiggily. "A long piece of weed had grown fast to a rock. You thought the rock, which was also covered with water weed, was the dragon's head. And the end of the weed, 'wiggling' in the brook looked like a tail."

"Oh, is that all the dragon was—just a weed?" asked Jingle.

"That's all!" said Uncle Wiggily, twinkling his pink nose again. "Only a water weed."

"Ha! Ha!" laughed Baby Buntie. "Weren't we silly?" Then once more they played beside the brook, making mud pies. And if the flashlight will stop blinking so the pillow can see to get in bed before it rains, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's June rose.

PAINTED RADIATORS

When you are doing your rooms over in delicate, lovely colors, why not try painting the radiators to match? The government pamphlets state that paint does not lessen radiation. And colored radiators do fade into the general scheme of the room most beautifully.

Dorothy Dix's Letter Box

Is It a Wise Girl Who Receives Attentions From Six Men?—Straight Talk to an Unbelievably Selfish Stepmother—Whence Comes Happiness in Love?

DEAR MISS DIX—Do you think it is wise for a girl to have a number of men friends and receive attention from them? I know a girl who has six young men who call her up and take her to places. She does not love any of these, but says that they are good for a good time until the right man comes along and that they will always be her friends? What do you think of a case like this?

ANSWER:
I think the girl has a head full of good, hard horse sense and that she has put the relationship between herself and boys on the only foundation that is fair and just to both sides.

Of course, every girl wants to have attentions from boys and every boy wants to go around with a pretty and attractive girl, but not every girl and boy are in love or want to marry every one of the opposite sex whose company they enjoy. Nor is every boy in a position to think about marrying.

I think that there is no custom more pernicious than that of boys and girls keeping what is called "steady company." It works a great wrong on both the boy and girl and is responsible for a large percentage of the unhappy marriages. Consider how it works out:

A young boy and girl, because they have the natural urge for companionship of the opposite sex, begin to go together. They are not in love with each other. They have no present desire to marry each other. In any case, it will be years before they will be able to marry. But when they begin going together, although they are not engaged, neither one has any more dates, and they are automatically cut off from association with other girls and boys.

This limits their knowledge of the other sex and narrows their choice, which is a fatal objection to the system, because before a man and a woman pick out a wife or a husband they should have known many men and women and be able to compare them with their selection in order to be sure that they have got what they want.

To marry the first man or woman you see is as poor judgment as it would be to invest all of your money in the first automobile you see or buy the first dress shown you in a shop. Perhaps the first one is as good as any. And perhaps it isn't what you want at all and you will see something you like better the next minute. But at any rate, if you have looked them all over you know you are getting the thing that fires your fancy and comes up to your ideal.

Again, if a girl and boy have gone together for years, they are automatically forced into marrying each other even if they find out that they have no especial tenderness for each other or even that they are ungenial. People have come to expect them to marry and they have drifted out of touch with other young people and so they are practically driven into a union in which neither brings any enthusiasm and in which a disgruntled man and woman nag and fight through a miserable marriage.

For the girl the keeping company custom is still more disastrous, because she lets one boy monopolize her during the heyday of her youth and beauty when her chances of marrying are best, yet she has no assurance that he will ever pop the question. Any day he can kiss and ride away and leave her lamenting.

No, I think the girl is wise who keeps as many men on the string as she can until some chap comes along and pops the question and names the wedding day.

She has a good time. She has many men to pick from, and when Mr. Right does appear she makes him a better and a happier wife because he is her preference instead of her necessity and because she has had all the lovemaking she wants she is content to settle down to one. It is the unsatisfied women, who still crave romance, who make the flirtatious wives.

And this is fair to the young men, too, because it gives them feminine companionship and still leaves them free and unhampered.

DOROTHY DIX.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX—I am married to a man who is everything that is good and kind and generous, but he was a widower and has a daughter ten years old. This child is very good, but for the last seven months she has been sick and her father expects me to wait on her and do for her just as if she was my own. We are expecting a little stranger in our home soon, so I do not feel like waiting on some one else's child. Please, Miss Dix, write me a comforting letter in your column.

COMPLAINING WIFE.

ANSWER:
I fear what I have to say to you won't be very comforting, for I think a woman who begrudges care to a little sick girl child is a candidate for the medal for the meanest woman and that she hasn't a heart as big as a chicken's.

I grant you that the role of stepmother calls for a nobility of character that many women do not possess. I can understand that there are many women who are so jealous that they cannot endure the children that are perpetual reminders to them that their husbands loved other women before them and that there are many women so selfish that they cannot bear to see their husband's affection or money given to his children by a previous marriage instead of being monopolized by their own children.

But why do such women marry widowers with children? How do they dare, knowing there is a just God, to take into their hands the lives of little helpless children and ruin them? Surely it was of such cruel stepmothers and stepfathers, for men are guilty of the same offence, that the curse was uttered: "It were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck and he be cast into the sea than that he should offend one of these little ones."

You say your husband expects you to care for his sick little girl as if she was your own child. Of course he does. You promised to be a mother to her when you married him and it is impossible for a generous-minded man, such as he is, to think of a woman so hard, with so little womanhood in her, so little sweetness and tenderness, that she would begrudge any care to a pain-ridden little child.

Suppose you try to visualize what he will think of you. What a contempt he will have for you when he finds you out and sees you as you are—hard, callous, selfish, without even a pang of pity for a sick child. I can think of nothing that would kill a man's love quicker than that.

You say you are about to become a mother. Suppose you should die and leave a little helpless baby. Suppose if was sick and suppose it fell into the hands of a stepmother. Would you want that woman to treat your suffering little child as you are treating your little stepdaughter?

DEAR MISS DIX—Is it more happiness to love or to be loved?

MARGIE.

ANSWER:
Happiness in love comes from both loving and being loved. There is desolation in giving love to one who does not return it and boredom in being loved by one for whom we have no affection.

But if one could choose between the two, probably it would be better to love than to be loved. At least it would be more interesting and have more thrills in it, because those we love are continually trying to win and it keeps us pepped up and on our tiptoes, whereas being loved by an unloved one is merely a state of being surfeited on sweets for which we have lost our appetite.

Keating

Keating, June 17. — The South Saanich Junior Institute Club met at the home of Miss Gladys Tanner Thursday evening for their June meeting with a good attendance of members and visitors. Miss Mabel Miller presided and the secretary's report was given by Miss Ora Young. Summer activities were discussed and it was decided to hold the annual club picnic at Goldstream on Saturday, July 5. An invitation was received from Mrs. M. Foster, Lake Hill, for the club to spend the evening at her home on June 26.

An amusing game was played, with Mrs. F. Goodwin as winner of first prize and Miss Ora Young winner of consolation. A dainty sit down supper was served by the hostess. Those present were, Mrs. F. Goodwin, Mrs. W. Hulme, Miss Ora Young, Mabel Miller, Marjorie North, Bessie Turgoose.

Miss Lawson has been the guest of Mrs. M. Anderson, Telegraph Road, for the past week.

Nationalist Is Candidate in Scottish District

Glasgow, Scotland, June 17.—Nomination yesterday in the Shettleston division by-election revealed the candidature of a Scottish Nationalist, several of whom appeared in the last general election without any notable success.

The seat was rendered vacant by the death of Hon. John Wheatley, Labor representative in Parliament since 1922.

The candidates are John McCowan, Labor; W. B. Templeton, Conservative; J. M. McNicol, Scottish Nationalist; and Shapurji Saklatvala, former member of Parliament, Communist.

In the general election Wheatley was elected with a majority of 6,724 over a Conservative opponent.

Hollywood's New "Barkies" Bring Dog Actors With Human Voices to the Talkie Screen

Canines Act as Men
Speak the Words

By DAN THOMAS

WOOF . . . woof . . . woof! The "barkies" have come to Hollywood! In case you have not seen some of these comedies, the dog actors walk erect, wear human clothing and speak in perfect English, human actors being employed as "doubles" for the dialogue, of course.

Their stage has been dubbed by studio employees as Dogville, and it is just that. For in Dogville the dogs reign supreme. They have their own "dressing-rooms," individual cages for the "stars" and two large ones for the "extras." Their own wardrobe is filled with the clothes made to fit them. And the stars have their own chairs on each set, just as human celebrities do.

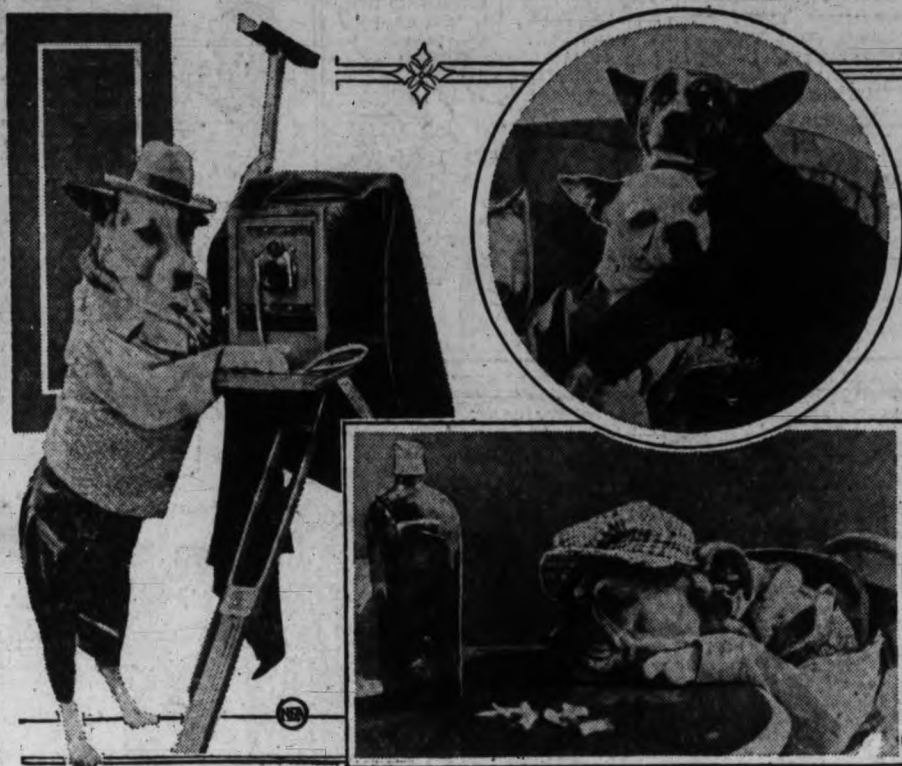

DIRECTORS "SELL" IDEA

The dogs were gathered on the M-G-M lot by Zion Myers and Jules White, a couple of enterprising young directors who hit upon the idea of making a series of all-talking dog comedies. They went to Harry Rapf, M-G-M executive, who immediately signed them to make six pictures. Only four of those six have been completed, but their contract already has been extended to include an additional six films.

"Directing a dog comedy isn't quite as hard as one might suppose, but it does require a great amount of patience," Myers told me.

"Dogs are good actors, however. Once a dog knows what you want he is extremely eager to do the thing right. We have found the dogs very intelligent and they seem to thoroughly enjoy their work."

The greatest difficulty experienced so far has been the synchronization of voices. When scenes are being shot the dogs are made to bark in places where dialogue is desired. Then the picture is run off in the projection-room with the human "doubles" speaking the lines. And each line must correspond to the number of lip movements made by the dog.

EACH KNOWS HIS MASTER

It is intensely interesting to watch the filming of a scene with a dozen or more dogs. Often there is a regular bedlam of noise with all of the trainers shouting at their respective dogs. But each dog seems to recognize his master's voice and acts accordingly.

The pictures all are made on miniature stages which have been furnished with miniature furniture. Consequently when the films reach the silver screen the dogs assume the proportions of human beings.

Each of the films also has an honest-to-go story behind it. There's more than just a bunch of dogs doing tricks.

They have their stories and play them out. For instance, there is "The Dogville Murder Mystery," which is a satire on "The Bishop Murder Case," with dog actors that seemingly have human voices.

Donald, both this year's graduates of the University of British Columbia, have also been appointed to temporary positions and arrived on Monday to take up their work.

On Tuesday Dr. C. S. Beals and W. E. Harper, the acting-director, will leave for Eugene, Oregon, to take part in the meeting of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific, which is one of a dozen affiliated societies of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The meeting will be held there from June 18 to 21. Mr. Harper is chairman of the programme committee on astronomy and he, with Dr. Beals, will present six papers prepared by various members of the staff of the local institution.

Summer Assistants Named; Staff Members Leave for Big Meeting in Oregon

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory four temporary appointments have recently been made. H. H. Platt, formerly of the observatory staff, but now professor of astrophysics at Harvard University, will spend a short time at the observatory this summer. With Mrs. Platt and their two children they arrived on Friday last.

Dr. Bruggencate of Germany, who has spent some time at Harvard, arrived on Sunday also for a short stay to carry on some research work.

TAKES MOVIES OF VICTORIA FROM PLANE

Government Cameraman Will Fly Over City to Complete Picture Series

Completing over 25,000 feet of film taken on Vancouver Island W. T. Oliver of the national parks branch of the Federal Government yesterday took moving pictures of Victoria from the air to supplement the scores of fine views already taken.

An airplane was placed at Mr. Oliver's disposal by the Alaska-B.C. Airways, and he soared over the harbor, the business section of the city, the Gulf Island and the Saanich Peninsula securing a remarkable panorama which will portray the charms of Victoria and vicinity at this time of the year in the best way that they could possibly be pictured. The combination of sea and landscape pictures which should represent Victoria in an alluring reel that should prove invaluable from a publicity standpoint.

In company with George I. Warren, Victoria and Island Publicity Commissioner, Mr. Oliver took pictures of Parkville, Qualicum and the Saanich Peninsula during the week-end. Pictures of a number of wonderful gardens in Victoria were also taken. Near Parkville fortune smiled on the cameraman. While the cars were parked a deer so tame, that it walked up to the publicity commissioner's car came from the bushes and timidly ate food from Mrs. Warren's hand. Then on a clasp of the hands it scurried back to the bushes. The photographer secured an excellent moving picture of the incident.

Other action pictures he has secured during his visit are of a party shooting the rapids at Cowichan and Indians guiding canoes through the swift moving waters. Stephen Jones landing a salmon at Brentwood and General Noel Money-casting. Other pictures on his reels include Parliament Square, deep-sea and coastwise boats calling and leaving the harbor, Cathedral Grove, timber at Cameron Lake, and many golf scenes.

AT THE THEATRES

COVERED WAGONS
AT THE DOMINION

In "Song of the West," Warner Bros. have provided another of those delightful, melodious all-color pictures for which they are already famous. This one is simply ablaze with color, alive with action and tuneful melodies and intelligently directed and acted. It sets a new high mark in the production of these entertaining musical screen shows.

"Song of the West," is an operetta with a genuine plot. The gay singing and dancing, the magnificent outdoor scenes and the march of the covered wagons, form a perfect background for a story that is tense with drama. It is a new picture of the Old West, thanks to the magic of the Vitaphone and the technicolor process.

Both Vivienne Segal and Marie Wells, who play leading roles in "Song of the West," the Warner Bros. production of covered wagon days, now at the Dominion Theatre, know every line and song of "The Desert Song."

PLAYHOUSE STAR IS GREAT SWIMMER IN RECREATION TIME

When Fox Movietone executives offered Norma Terris, Broadway musical star, a contract they had little difficulty in persuading her to sign when she learned that numerous fine beaches abound near Hollywood. Swimming is Miss Terris' favorite sport, and she leaped at the opportunity to indulge in outdoor aquatic sports the year round in the mild California climate. She is co-starred with J. Harold Murray in "Cameo Kirby," now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. The production was directed by Irving Cummings.

200 MALE VOICES
HEARD IN TALKIE
NOW AT COLISEUM

One hundred male voices were tested recently at the Paramount Hollywood sound stage for the Grenadiers' chorus sequence of the first original musical romance, "The Love Parade," now showing at the Coliseum Theatre. They were recruited from church choirs, vocal schools, from the Los Angeles Grand Opera Company and from the stage.

They sing the Grenadiers' chorus with Jeanette MacDonald, leading lady of "The Love Parade," who plays the part of the Queen of Sylvania. Maurice Chevalier, star of "Innocents of Paris," is starred in "The Love Parade."

LEWIS STONE HAS STELLAR ROLE IN COLUMBIA STORY

Lewis Stone, famous in "Madame X," "The Trial of Mary Dugan," and other outstanding play successes, secured a German musical composer in his latest role in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Wonder of Women," now showing at the Columbia Theatre. It is a Clarence Brown production, based on Hermann Sudermann's "The Wife of Stephen Trombitt," with Stone, Peggy Wood, the New York stage star, Lella Hyams, Harry Myers, George Fawcett, Sarah Padden and others of note in the cast. Stone speaks German lines in the picture—and it is said that the last time he spoke German was in France, when as a major in the American army, he interviewed prisoners.

VOICES FEATURE
"FLIRTING WIDOW"
AT THE CAPITOL

One of the finest collections of talkie "voices" gathered in any single picture will be heard in "The Flirting Widow," First National and Vitaphone comedy now at the Capitol Theatre.

Every member of the cast has had years of stage training, with all but two getting their experience in Eugene O'Neill's play, "The Flirting Widow," which is based on A. E. W. Mason's popular English play, "Green Stockings."
